Course Description and Goals
This course addresses the intersection of culture and psychology, or culture and subjectivity. Course materials will introduce students to a range of anthropological approaches to how culture shapes interiority or psychological life. Course readings draw from a variety of approaches and topics within anthropology. Throughout the course students will come to understand what anthropologists mean when they use the clumsy term “subjectivity,” and the ways in which cultural, technical, infrastructural, and medical systems help to shape identity, emotions, desires, and even mental illnesses. Students will come to develop an appreciation and sensibility for the uses and significance of sociocultural approaches and applications to contemporary psychological and psychiatric problems.

Course topics range from the intersections of anthropology and psychoanalysis to the management of fear, secrecy, and paranoia in the making of American postwar nationalism. From the making of zones of abandonment for marginalized and colonized populations, to the relationship between the built environment and affect. Through this material students will come to understand how the things that we feel are most intimate, personal, and unique to us are not simply individually-bound, but rather, developed through interaction with cultural, technical, and material environments that differ across space and time.

The course satisfies requirements for the Human Behavior/D(1) Area in the General Education Core, as well as departmental and program requirements in anthropology and behavioral science.

Student Learning Objectives
Students who satisfactorily complete this course will be able to identify and analyze the social dimension of society as a context for human life, the processes of social change and social continuity, the role of human agency in those social processes, and the forces that engender social cohesion and fragmentation, and

1. place contemporary developments in cultural, historical, environmental, and spatial contexts;
2. identify the dynamics of ethnic, cultural, gender/sexual, age-based, class, regional, national, transnational, and global identities and the similarities, differences, linkages, and interactions between them; and
3. evaluate social science information, draw on different points of view, and formulate applications appropriate to contemporary social issues, and
4. recognize the interaction of social institutions, culture, and environment with the behavior of individuals.

Departmental Learning Objectives and Skills:
By the completion of this course, students should have an increased:

1. Understanding the influence of culture on individual psychology.
2. Awareness of human diversity and the ways humans have categorized diversity.
3. The role of social, political, and technical systems in the shaping of mental life.
4. An understanding of the distinction – and complementarities – between anthropological and psychological approaches to contemporary mental illnesses.
5. A grasp of theoretical traditions in the anthropological study of psychology.

Classroom Protocol/Student Responsibilities

Please do not use your cell phones or MP3 players for any purpose during class. However, if you are expecting an important call you should notify me so we can make arrangements. Please do not use your computers to take notes during in-class films.

There will be various in-class assignments intended to help students grasp and apply concepts that are discussed in class. I highly recommend students attend class as often as possible. Some in-class assignments will be given at the beginning of class and others at the end of the class; thus, it is important to arrive on time and attend the entire class period. Students will not be able to make-up the in-class assignments. If you know in advance that you should be unable to attend an exam, it is your responsibility to contact me immediately by either e-mailing me, leaving a message for me at the main department office, or coming by during my office hours. Only students with a valid documented excuse will be able to take a make-up exam or hand in a late assignment. Late assignments will not be accepted otherwise. Students will not be able to make-up the in-class assignments.

I have a zero-tolerance on cheating and plagiarism; if you cheat or plagiarize you will fail the Incidences of cheating and plagiarism will be turned into the academic integrity office. Students are responsible for understanding and adhering to the academic integrity policy.

I will not answer questions about what occurred in class due to an absence. Please ask your fellow students for copies of their notes.

Students are responsible for understanding policies about adding, dropping, and incompletes.

Students are responsible for being aware of assignment due dates, midterm date, and the final exam schedule.

If you have any concerns about your class performance or comprehension, come by my office during office hours or schedule an appointment. I am always willing to help students and I care about whether students are grasping the material and enjoying the class.

Course Requirement and Assignments

SJSU classes are designed such that in order to be successful, it is expected that students will spend a minimum of forty-five hours for each unit of credit (normally three hours per unit per week), including preparing for class, participating in course activities, completing assignments, and so on. More details about student workload can be found in University Policy S12-3 at http://www.sjsu.edu/senate/docs/S12-3.pdf.

Students will complete five essay assignments for this course.

The first paper (“Low Theory Lab or Critical Analysis Paper”) will develop “low theory” and description of an ordinary node of psychic life. It will help students develop their ethnographic listening skills and ability to defamiliarize and describe affects, feelings, and cultural ideologies circulating in everyday life. Students will also learn to attend to and deconstruct forms of power and difference implicit in individual (and public) feelings and affects. 3 pages. 100 points. Meets SLO 1, 2, 3

Second, students will be required to write an “Atmospheric Attunment/Spatial Unconscious Paper” that requires small-scale ethnographic research in, and description of, the organization of subjectivity and power in some cultural space. 3 pages. 100 points. Meets SLO 1, 2, 3, 4

Alternately, students may write a “Cultural Politics of Mental Illness and Postwar Psychology” paper. SLO 1, 2, 3, 4

Third, students will be required to develop a research prospectus concerning a life history interview and write-up that they plan to develop. 1/2 page. (department learning objective 4). 50 points. This assignment will be followed-up later in the semester with students required to hand in a transcript/thematization of an oral history interview they conduct. 3 pages. 100 points. SLO 1, 2, 3, 4

Fourth, students will complete an anthropological analysis of their life history interview for their final paper. 5 pages. 150 points. (department learning objective 2&3). SLO 1, 2, 3, 4
Fifth, students will be required to keep a reading journal throughout the semester that will be collected at random three times over the course of the semester. Students will be required to make two short entries (at least one page) each week that cover central concepts in course readings. 200 points. SLO 3

Grading

- Low Theory Lab = 100 points
- Atmospheric Attunments Paper = 100 points
- Prospectus = 50 points + Interview thematization/Low Theory Lab = 100 points
- Life History paper = 150 points
- Reading Journal = 200 points
- 700 total points

Grades will be based on percentages: 90-100% = A, 80-89% = B, 70-79% = C, 60-69% = D, below 60 = F

University Policies and Resources
Per University Policy S16-9, university-wide policy information relevant to all courses, such as academic integrity, accommodations, etc. will be available on Office of Graduate and Undergraduate Programs’ Syllabus Information web page at http://www.sjsu.edu/gup/syllabusinfo/”
