Course Description

Introduction: This course is a broad introduction to the ancient civilizations of Mexico, Central America and the coastal regions and Andes of South America. The course traces the interaction of these cultures with their environments, and examines the evolution of these complex societies. Several lesser known neighboring cultures and those that preceded the Maya or Inka will also be investigated to illustrate how they collectively contributed to the rise of the great civilizations in the Americas. The objective of this course is to give students a basic understanding of social and cultural processes affecting civilizations of the Americas before the arrival of Europeans. Developments in architecture, mathematics, science, art, and religion will be highlighted.

It is highly recommended that students come to class prepared to discuss the weekly topics by completing assigned readings in advance of lecture. Individual lectures complement the readings and will include extensive use of slides in support of discussion.

Required Texts:

Coe, Michael and Houston, Stephen
2015 The Maya. Thames and Hudson, London.

Leòn-Portillo, Miguel
1962 The Broken Spears: The Aztec Account of the Conquest of Mexico. Beacon Press, Boston.

Course Objectives

- Broad understanding of research in human cultural evolution, critical issues in environmental change, and the evidence from archaeological research.
- In depth understanding of the major civilizations of the Americas before European contact.
- Critical recognition of the role archaeological sciences serve in reconstructing civilizations.
- Explicit understanding of multiple cultural, political, literary, and technological achievements of the Maya, Aztec and Inka and the capability to distinguish groups through specific attributes.
- Knowledge of the contributions of New World civilizations to the modern world. Students will understand Native American perspectives on contact and the aftermath of conquest.

Course Learning Outcomes

- Students will develop and demonstrate critical thinking skills in assessing behavioral/environmental practices from archaeological evidence.
- Students will become acquainted with professional resource materials relevant to topics covered during the course through completion of independent research projects.
- Students will demonstrate mastery of geographic knowledge of New World civilizations.
- Students will recognize, identify, and provide discourse about the major monuments and cultural components of the Maya, Aztec, and Inka.
- Students will be able to describe and compare the social and cultural development sequences that preceded the Maya, Aztec, and Inka.

Course Requirements and Assignments

SJSU classes are designed such that in order to be successful, it is expected that students will spend a minimum of forty-five hours for each unit of credit (normally three hours per unit per week), including preparing for class, participating in course activities, completing assignments, and so on.

Lectures are an important aspect of instruction. Material not covered in the readings or text, videos, and supplementary information are provided during lectures which cannot adequately be made up. It is therefore essential that students make every effort to attend class for a more comprehensive learning experience. Attendance is not graded; however, we conduct hands-on group activities in the lab which cannot be made up that count in the student's overall participation grade. Students should plan to spend six hours each week on assignments and readings outside of class.

Assessments:

There will be three unit exams, one of which will be the Final. Each interim exam covers the material presented since the previous exam. The final exam emphasizes synthesis of the course. The exams may include a visual component assessing archaeological site knowledge. In addition, each student will complete a topical paper (5pages) from a prescribed list exploring specific aspects of pre-European American civilizations. In-class activities will also be assessed for participation credit and may not be made-up if missed. Your written work is assessed based on proficiency as well as topic accuracy and relevance.

- 2 Topical papers 50 pts each (100 pts) 33% [includes graded annotated bibliography]
- 3 Unit Exams (includes Final) 50 pts (150 pts) 50%
- 2 In class activities 25 pts (50 pts) 17%

Total: 300 pts

Grades will be based on score percentages. 92-100% 4.0; 87-13% 3.5; 80-86% 3.0; 75-79% 2.5; 70-74% 2.0; 64-69% 1.5; 57-63% 1.0; <56% 0.

- No assignments will be accepted by email.
- Late assignments will be have scores deducted 25% for the first day and 25% for a second day. No assignment will be accepted later than two class days for credit.
- No assignments will be accepted after the last day of classes.

CLO	Core Competency	Assessment
Students will develop and demonstrate critical thinking skills in assessing behavioral/environmental practices from archaeological evidence.	Lecture and readings related to geography and environmental interaction.	Exam essay questions, topical papers.
Students will become acquainted with professional resource materials relevant to topics covered during the course through completion of independent research projects.	AA citation style and reference guides. Readings. Topical papers.	Topical papers in appropriate style using peer reviewed materials, Annotated bibliography. Various topics.
Students will demonstrate mastery of geographic knowledge of New World civilizations.	Lecture and readings related to geography and environmental interaction, migration theories, and culture spread.	Exam and map questions. 90% correct map placement represents basic competency.
Students will recognize and identify the major monuments and cultural components of the Maya, Aztec, and Inka.	Slides of architecture and artistic motifs, readings, lecture, discussion.	Exam questions. Visual recognition questions. 75% represents basic competence.
Students will be able to describe the social and cultural development sequences that preceded the Maya, Aztec, and Inka.	Lecture and readings. Slide presentations provide graphic view.	Exam questions. Topical papers on related subjects.

Earning an A: All assignments must be completed, on time, and demonstrate thorough mastery of conceptual as well as critical content. Assignments will exhibit thoughtful and critical analysis, conceptual synthesis, and originality. Papers will be carefully proofed for grammatical and typographical errors and exhibit exemplary writing appropriate to the discipline. Seminar responsibilities achieved. Assignments must be of consistently high quality in terms of content and execution. Examinations will score in the 90% and above range. Projects complete and original or innovative.

Earning a B: All assignments must be completed, on time, and demonstrate general comprehension of conceptual as well as critical content. Assignments will exhibit thoughtful analysis and effort should be made at conceptual synthesis. Seminar responsibilities achieved. Papers will be carefully proofed for grammatical and typographical errors and exhibit very few writing problems. Assignments must be of good quality in terms of content and conform to standards appropriate to the discipline. Exams may score in the 85% and above range. Projects complete and original.

Earning a C: At least 80% of assignments must be completed, on time, and demonstrate general understanding of critical content. Knowledge of basic conceptual material should be demonstrated. Seminar responsibilities achieved. Assignments will exhibit careful effort with minimal errors in content. Papers will likely contain grammatical and typographical errors and exhibit general writing problems. Citation standards incorrect. Exams may score in the 75% and above range. Projects complete but of average quality as measured by content and scope.

Earning a D: Failure to turn in assignments in a timely manner or to complete no more than 60% of assignments. Only basic knowledge of conceptual material. Critical analysis not demonstrated. Assignments exhibiting a lack of careful or thoughtful effort and several errors in content. Failure to achieve seminar responsibilities or at barely acceptable effort. Minimal engagement in class projects. Papers will likely contain grammatical and typographical errors and exhibit general writing problems. Citation standards ignored. Exams may score below 75% range. Project partial completed a basic level.

Earning an F: Failure to turn in assignments in a timely manner or to complete and submit more than 60% of assignments. Basic knowledge of conceptual material and critical analysis not demonstrated. No evidence of general skills or course content acquired. Assignments exhibiting a lack of careful or thoughtful effort and significant errors evident in content. Papers will likely contain serious grammatical and typographical errors along with general writing problems, especially in word usage. Citation standards wrong. Exams may score below the 60% range. Final project incomplete, late, or absent. Any intentional plagiarism will automatically result in a failing grade. Missing final exam will result in an F.

Grade I: Special circumstances (personal circumstances preventing student from academic completion of the course). Attendance below acceptable levels to have earned an I will in some instances be assigned an F grade per University policy. An Incomplete can not be given to avoid a F grade.

Classroom Protocol

All lectures and handouts are copyrighted, including exams, and may not be distributed without written consent by the instructor.

- Students are encouraged to ask questions before, during, and after class and to take full advantage of scheduled office hours or make appointments to discuss topics of interest.
- The instructor will make every reasonable effort to provide timely and constructive feedback to students concerning performance throughout the semester.
- The instructor will be available through regular office hours, through email, and by appointment.
- Students should expect to actively participate individually, through group work, class discussions, and in Q&A sessions.
- Students are expected to keep track of assignments, grades and readings.
- Missed exams may be made-up only if a student provides appropriate documentation for legitimate cause for missing scheduled exam dates (funeral, medical emergency, family crisis; per university policy). Absolutely no make-up will be given for reasons of course overloads, or personal time. Make-up exams will be by scheduled appointment in my office and will include oral discussion section. Late research projects will not be accepted. Late assignments will be given a grace period of one class cycle (the next class) and a reduced score. Late assignments will not be accepted beyond the grace period. Assignments will not be accepted during finals week.
- Exam dates will not be altered. If you have a conflict with a scheduled exam date please make arrangements in advance (at least two weeks). The sooner the better.

- You may not leave the room during an exam. The instructor will interpret this as a completed exam and it will be collected without further opportunity to continue.
- The instructor reserves the right to adjust the syllabus content as deemed necessary to facilitate the highest achievement and performance of the class or to introduce new elements that may arise. Archaeology is an active science. New information becomes available weekly that may impact our course material.
- To receive a passing grade for this course you must complete and submit at least 2/3 of the assignments with sufficient scores and complete the Final Exam.
- Extra credit assignments will not be provided as substitutes for missing regular assignments.
- Academic integrity and ethics will be upheld at all times. Plagiarism is intellectually dishonest and a form of theft. It will not be tolerated.
- All lectures are copyrighted. The use of recording equipment of any kind; tape, film, or digital, is forbidden without written consent from the instructor. This is not usually a problem. Students must agree not to use lectures in unauthorized formats or non-educational purposes.
- All written projects should conform to the citation and reference standards of American Antiquity (SAA). Examples are provided for use on my faculty webpage.
- Students are expected to attend class. Participation is a vital element in a social science environment and attendance is foundational to academic success. Attendance does not count toward your grade, but will impact your learning. Attendance will be monitored informally.
- Please turn off your cell phones as a courtesy and in respect for fellow students and the instructor.
- Please: Food or drinks are not allowed in the lab.
- It will be assumed that you have read and understand all policies and course criteria.
- Texting in class is unacceptable behavior. You will be asked to leave the room as this is a disturbance for the instructor and your classmates.
