Course Description

This three unit course is an opportunity for graduate students to refine professional writing skills in both artistic and curatorial practices and to articulate and contextualize their own work and research interests. The course is a synthesis of discourses between artists, art historians, creative researchers, and writers. Students will develop individual essays, including a final paper to meet professional standards in contemporary art practice. This is a workshop for constructive feedback about your writing and for sharing knowledge and questions about the field of fine art and visual culture. This is also an opportunity for students to sharpen their ability to think critically about their own work through the use of writing.

Discussions of readings will be complemented by student presentations of their own writing. Peer discussion and dialog are a significant component of the course.

The default class format is to use the first hour for discussion of topical readings and or other educational resources (i.e., film, online media); the second hour the focus is to work on in-class writing exercises, grammar and writing style issues or questions, and or peer/instructor editing and review.

Course Goals and Learning Objectives

GE Learning Outcomes (GELO)

This course is a seminar with a strong workshop component, so in-class writing, editing, peer review, and discussion are essential. Students in this course will write a minimum of 30 pages, including a final paper, and students are expected to explore their own goals and develop ideas through the processes of critical reading and writing. A willingness to explore ideas and take risks with one’s writing is essential.

This course meets the Graduate Writing Assessment Requirement. It seeks to provide students with essential writing skills in the context of professional practice and to sharpen the ability of students to think critically about their own work through writing.

Course Learning Outcomes (CLO)

LO1 - read texts closely and apply the knowledge gained to their own writing;
LO2 - express (explain, analyze, develop, and criticize) ideas effectively, including ideas encountered in multiple readings and expressed in different forms of discourse;
LO3 - articulate their own artistic or art historical intentions;
LO4 - write clearly, effectively, and critically to accomplish specific artistic or curatorial goals and address specific audiences according to standards of professional practice in art;
LO5 - organize and develop essays and documents for both professional and general audiences, including appropriate editorial standards for citing primary and secondary sources;
LO6 - employ a variety of voices, discourses and rhetorical modes, both in relation to certain kinds of artwork and in relation to certain professional contexts and audiences.

Upon successful completion of this course, students will have mastered:
LO7 - a set of rhetorical strategies for discussing contemporary art;
LO8 - some major issues and discourses in contemporary art;
LO9 - the ability to contextualize their own practices within the global community;
LO10 - an understanding and appreciation for the significant parallels and antecedents for their own professional practices

Grading Policy
The course can only be taken for a letter grade. Grades will be based on specific 1-3 page writing assignments (30%), more lengthy writing-related projects (30%), in-class exercises/participation/peer review (20%), and the completion of the final writing project and discussion (20%) As of August 7, 2019, I do not use an online accessible grade book, so please communicate with me in person or via email about your grade.
Assignments
Although this is not the focus of the course, the writing assignments support the content requirements for SJSU’s Department of Art and Art History master’s degree thesis papers. Because this writing class is a seminar, in addition to submitting work online via Canvas, depending on the assignment, you will be asked to print out a hardcopy of your work for peer and instructor review editing and feedback. Specifics regarding assignment submission will be communicated in class, on Canvas, and on your assignment instruction sheet. During class, students must be prepared to share and discuss their response to the reading/writing assignments and also ready to explore and address writing issues. This way we can share knowledge about how to meet writing challenges such as grammar, organization, tone, and audience.

Assignment Format
Unless I have designated the assignment to be handwritten, type all assignments with one-inch margins and a 12-point font. Double-space, use 1” margins, with page numbers and your name, section number and assignment title on all pages.

Classroom Protocol
Attendance
Attendance is vital to your success in the course, and participation in classroom work is essential to the success of the course for the whole group. If you are too ill or too contagious to attend class you must send me an email by class time. It is your responsibility to manage your time for this class and your life/work/education endeavors. (See University Policy S12-3.)

Coursework deadlines
No late work accepted unless there is a communicated emergency, and I agree on amnesty. If there is a pattern of missing classes, negotiating deadlines, or attempting to turn in late coursework, you must take responsibility and know that this will have a negative affect on your grade.

In-class work is vital to this course and cannot be made up or customized for students who do not make class meetings. Writing assignments must be complete, submitted online and printed out (depending on instructions), and ready for discussion and editorial comments at the beginning of the class on the day they are due.

Classroom civility
We all (students, faculty, staff, i.e., our learning community) need to strive for classroom civility. This is key in order to develop an engaged, mutually respectful learning space. Please be on time. As a courtesy to others, please no food in this course due to the sensitive nature of people’s dietary issues (fasting, allergies, etc.). Participate fully in discussions of the assigned reading material and presentations shown in class.

Students will turn their cell phones off while in class. They will not answer their phones in class. If you have to use your cell phone for an emergency, leave quietly.
Laptop and tablets must be used only for note-taking, presentations, and in-class work. I reserve the right to ask students to refrain from device usage if I observe and experience that it is a distraction and counter productive. Students who use electronic devices for activities unrelated to the class will be asked to leave the class. If the behavior continues, the student will be referred to the Judicial Affairs Officer of the University.

Academic integrity

Your commitment as a student to learning is evidenced by your enrollment at San Jose State University. The University Academic Integrity Policy S07-2 requires you to be honest in all your academic course work. Faculty members are required to report all infractions to the office of Student Conduct and Ethical Development. Instances of academic dishonesty will not be tolerated. Cheating on exams or plagiarism (presenting the work of another as your own, or the use of another person’s ideas without giving proper credit) will result in a failing grade and sanctions by the University. For this class, all assignments are to be completed by the individual student unless otherwise specified. If you would like to include your assignment or any material you have submitted, or plan to submit for another class, please note that SJSU’s Academic Integrity Policy S07-2 requires approval of instructors.

Campus Policy in Compliance with the American Disabilities Act

If you need course adaptations or accommodations because of a disability, or if you need to make special arrangements in case the building must be evacuated, please make an appointment with me as soon as possible, or see me during office hours. Presidential Directive 97-03 requires that students with disabilities requesting accommodations must register with the Accessibility Education Center (AEC) to establish a record of their disability.
