

San Jose State University
Center on Healthy Aging in Multicultural Populations (CHAMP)*
Research Symposia Series I

May 14th, 12 pm -1:30 pm
School of Social Work Large Conference Room

Program

1. Opening Remarks – Sadhna Diwan, Director, CHAMP

2. Presentations
 - Brain Plasticity in Aging, Alzheimer's disease and Stroke
 - Jean Neils-Strunjas, Associate Professor, Communicative Disorders and Sciences

 - Attitudes and Behavior of Elderly Asian Indians Towards Health and the Impact of Nutrition Education Program on Dietary Knowledge and Behavior
 - Ashwini Wagle, Assistant Professor, Depart of Nutrition, Food Science and Packaging

 - Exploring the interface of culture, social factors, health literacy and health promotion among older Chinese, Vietnamese, and Asian Indian immigrants with limited English proficiency (Research Proposal)
 - Sang E. Lee, Assistant Professor, School of Social Work,
 - Sadhna Diwan, Associate Professor, School of Social Work, and
 - Daryl Canham, Professor, School of Nursing

3. Announcement
 - Summer writing group

*The mission of the Center on Healthy Aging Multicultural Populations (CHAMP) is to promote healthy aging among multicultural populations living in the San Francisco Bay area. With faculty affiliates from all academic units at SJSU, the Center facilitates interdisciplinary applied research, education and training, and strategic partnerships with community-based organizations working with older adults.