The students who have been part of the 2018-2019 CLSSC Undergraduate Research Team will share the findings from their year-long projects. They will also talk about the lessons from the process and why undergraduate research is so important for SJSU students. If you have questions about issues and ideas in your major or if you have ever thought about graduate school but aren’t sure, see how much your undergraduate peers have learned by challenging themselves to take on something new and intimidating!
