

Are you interested in teaching history/social sciences?

Share an evening with

Dr. Sam Wineburg

Author of Historical Thinking and Other Unnatural Acts: Charting the Future of Teaching the Past

who will speak on the future of teaching history

Tuesday, April 15

5:00 pm-6:30 pm

Engineering 189

San Jose State University

Dr. Wineburg won the Association of American Colleges and Universities' Frederic W. Ness Book Award for the work that "best illuminates the goals and practices of a contemporary liberal education."

Prior to moving to Stanford, he spent 13 years at the University of Washington, where he was professor of cognitive studies in education and recipient of the university's distinguished teaching award.