Course Description: We will study novels, films, and works of non-fiction prose set in and focused on California, specifically San Francisco, Los Angeles, and the Eastern Sierra. The novels are “Roman Noir” — dark novels about crime, the detection of crime, and moral corruption. The films are “Noir (c 1940-1960),” and “Neo-Noir (c 1960-present)” — dark films about crime, its detection, and moral corruption. The two works of non-fiction prose describe the Eastern Sierra before, during, and after the great Los Angeles “water grab,” a woeful historical tale of crime and moral corruption evoked in the film Chinatown. The “Noir” sensibility is alive and thriving in California and in many recent literary and screen works created in and about the State. This sensibility extends to works involving all social classes and ethnic and racial groups. It represents the “dark underside” of the glowing “Golden State.” The moral darkness often arises from individuals unscrupulously pursuing money and power. The moral darkness may also arise from jealousy, envy, fear, hatred, racism, sexism, classism, etc. These dark impulses are present in the works we will read and watch. As part of our investigations of “California Noir,” we will discuss not only the moral but also the historical, sociological, class/ethnic, and artistic/aesthetic implications of the “Noir” sensibility. All works we will read and watch are examples of both popular and high art—an extraordinary accomplishment of their creators.
