Course Description from Catalog
English 1A (First Year Writing) is an introductory course that prepares students to join scholarly conversations across the university. Students develop reading skills, rhetorical sophistication, and writing styles that give form and coherence to complex ideas for various audiences, using a variety of genres. GE Area: A2 Prerequisite: Completion of Reflection on College Writing

My Course Goals
As Virginia Woolf stated, “One cannot think well, love well, sleep well, if one has not dined well.” This semester, we are going to read, write, review, remember, and revise our ideas about food. From recipes to food issues around the world, we will be doing a lot of reading and writing with food in mind. In addition to writing about food and communities, you will also be doing a large amount of reading and reviewing of your own work, as well as your peers' work.
To succeed, you will need to keep up with the schedule and make it a priority to attend class. Please contact me immediately if at any point in the semester you feel you are falling behind.

You will be completing the following written work throughout the semester:
Three Essays
Daily Journals
Discussion Posts
Short Writing Assignments

GE Learning Outcomes (GELO)
Upon successful completion of this GE course, students will be able to:
1. read actively and rhetorically.
2. perform the essential steps in the writing process (prewriting, organizing, composing, revising, and editing) and demonstrate an awareness of said performance.
3. articulate an awareness of and write according to the rhetorical features of texts, such as purpose, audience, context, and rhetorical appeals.
4. integrate your ideas and those of others by explaining, analyzing, developing, and criticizing ideas effectively in several genres.
5. use college-level language with clarity and grammatical proficiency.

Required Texts/Readings

Textbook

Can I Use I? Because I hate, hate, hate college writing, Catherine Prendergast
ISBN-10: 0986145718
ISBN-13: 978-0986145711
Available at the bookstore and also on Amazon. Completely OK to buy a used version of this book.

All other readings will be available through links on Canvas.

Additionally, you will need to subscribe to the peer review site, Eli Review.

You can buy an access code from the Book store. Or you can subscribe online at https://elireview.com, which is probably cheaper.

Other technology requirements / equipment / material

You are definitely going to need a laptop for this course. You can rent one if you need one from the library on the 4th floor. If you this is going to be a problem, please let me know immediately.

Course Requirements, Assignments and Grading Information

Success in this course is based on the expectation that students will spend, for each unit of credit, a minimum of 45 hours over the length of the course (normally three hours per unit per week) for instruction, preparation/studying, or course related activities.

Homework: In this class, homework includes reading articles, sections of books, web pages, and other information to learn and assess information about food and the issues around food. It is more than likely and highly probable that we will be journaling in class about the readings. It also will include discussion posts that we will talk about in class. And you will be doing a lot of reviewing of your essays in class. That means, you will need to prepare the writing before class and bring it in for peer review.

Peer Review: Reviewing, Revising, and Rewriting are a large part of this class. We will be doing a lot of this online in Eli Review, an online app. Sometimes you will have to create things in class that we will review, but most of the time, you will have to write at home and then post and review in class.

Official Essays: I am assigning three formal essays for the class; a Personal Narrative, a Descriptive/Informational Essay, and an Argumentative/Persuasive Essay. We will be brainstorming, drafting, reviewing, revising, rewriting, and editing these works both in class and as homework.
Journals: You will be writing a journal post in every class (mostly). Journal prompts will usually be about the readings. The journal writing and discussion posts are a big part of our classroom participation. So basically, if you aren't in class, it will be very difficult to share and participate during class.

Presentations: At the end of the semester, you will be giving a three to five minute presentation on your final paper. This topic may change but the presentation requirement will not. We will be discussing this during class as the semester progresses.

Final Project/Portfolio: The final project will include some of the work you have produced for class. In addition, you will be writing a Writing Reflection describing your experience as a writer and reader in this class. Again, we will be discussing this more in class as the semester progresses.

Detailed information on each of these requirements will be presented in class and will be available on Canvas. If you have any questions, please don't hesitate to ask.

Please submit your assignments on time. Late papers will reluctantly be accepted with a decrease in grade. For every day late, you lose 5% on your grade. If you are in a situation that prevents you from turning in your paper on time, please contact me before the class that the paper is due.

That being said, you may revise and rewrite either essay one or essay two for an increase in grade.

Determination of Grades:

A: Excellent writing that is informative, persuasive, correct, engaging, descriptive
B: Above average writing that is organized, developed, and effective
C: Satisfactory writing that is clear, coherent, and complete
D: Unsatisfactory writing that is unclear, incoherent, and incorrect
F: Writing that is off-topic or late

NOTE: A plus (+) sign added to a letter grade indicates the highest performance or value within its range while a minus (-) sign indicates the lowest performance or value within its range.

Grading Information for GE

This course must be passed with a C- or better as a CSU graduation requirement.

Classroom Protocol

First of all, I'm not going to lie to you. Most of the interesting part of this class is going to happen in the classroom. If you miss class, you are missing out on information, discussion, in-class assignments, and other interesting information. There is no replacement for being there.

Second, this course is going to challenge you. The readings and the writing requirements are numerous. During most class sessions we will discuss writing, specifically the writing that you are producing, examine the various readings closely, practice writing, review our own work as well as those of our peers, and present our findings and papers, both formally and informally.

Laptops are required. They are tools for writing, research, and discourse. Please do not abuse the privilege. Smart phones should be on silent or vibrate during the class since most of the work will be done on laptops.

Participation

For practical purposes, most of the learning in this class is going to be from the classroom discussions. Therefore, it is absolutely crucial that you attend class every session and participate in class discussions and activities. Participation in class includes a.) demonstrating that you have completed the week's required readings/assignments b.) taking part in class discussions, and c.) completing in-class assignments and homework.

University Policies

Note to Students:

If you have special needs or accommodation requests, see me as soon as possible. If you don't let me know, you could lose some of the accommodations that you deserve!
Course Schedule

This schedule is subject to change with fair notice. Please monitor your Canvas as any changes in due dates or content will appear there, first. The items listed in each day should be completed before class. The homework for each day is located in the corresponding week’s folder in Canvas.
