

How to Make Sense of a Poem¹

Poetry is imaginatively intense language, usually in verse. Poetry is a form of fiction. It is distinguished from other fictions by the compression resulting from its heavier use of figures of speech and allusion² and, usually, by the music of its patterns of sound.

Initial Contact

1. READ the poem several times both silently and aloud.
2. Examine the title carefully – sometimes the meaning of a poem depends on it.
3. Consider the poem as a dramatic situation in which a speaker addresses an audience or another character. In this way, begin your analysis by identifying and describing the speaking voice or voices, the conflicts or ideas and the language used in the poem.

The Large Issues

Determine the basic design of the poem by considering the who, what, when, where and why of the dramatic situation.

- ▶ What is being dramatized? What conflicts or themes does the poem present, address or question?
- ▶ Who is the speaker? Define and describe the speaker and his/her voice. What does the speaker say? Who is the audience? Are other characters involved?
- ▶ What happens in the poem? Consider the plot or basic design of the action. How are the dramatized conflicts or themes introduced, sustained, resolved, etc?
- ▶ When does the action occur? What is the date and/or time of day?
- ▶ Where is the speaker? Describe the physical location of the dramatic moment.
- ▶ Why does the speaker feel compelled to speak at this moment? What is his/her motivation?

The Details

To analyze the design of a poem, we must focus on the poems' parts, namely how the poem dramatizes conflicts or ideas in language. By concentrating on the parts, we develop our understanding of the poem's structure, and we gather support and evidence for our interpretations. Some of the details we should consider include the following:

- ▶ Form: Does the poem represent a particular form (sonnet, elegy, ode, lyric, etc.)? Does the poem present any unique variations from the traditional structure of that form?
- ▶ Rhetoric: How does the speaker make particular statements? Does the rhetoric (word choice) seem odd in any way? Why? Consider the verbs and what they reveal about the speaker.
- ▶ Syntax: Consider the subjects, verbs and objects of each statement and what these elements reveal about the speaker. Do any statements have convoluted or vague syntax?
- ▶ Vocabulary: Why does the poet choose one word over another in each line? Do any of the words have multiple or archaic meanings that add other meanings to the line?

The Patterns

As you analyze the design line by line, look for certain patterns to develop which provide insight into the dramatic situation, the speaker's state of mind or the poet's use of details. Some of the most common patterns include the following:

- ▶ Rhetorical Patterns: Look for statements that follow the same format.
- ▶ Rhyme: Consider the significance of the end words joined by sound; in a poem with no rhymes, consider the importance of the end words and enjambment³.
- ▶ Patterns of Sound: Alliteration⁴ and assonance⁵ create sound effects and often cluster significant words.
- ▶ Visual Patterns: How does the poem look on the page?
- ▶ Rhythm and Meter: Consider how rhythm and meter influence our perception of the speaker and his/her language.

³Enjambment: Run-on lines in which grammatical sense runs from one line of poetry to the next without pause or punctuation.

⁴Alliteration: Two or more words, or accented syllables, chime on the same initial letter (lost love alone; after apple-picking) or repeat the same consonant.

⁵Assonance: Repetition of middle vowel sounds: fight, hive, pane, make.
