

GLAC Best Global Leadership Research Awards

Call for Submissions

The Global Leadership Advancement Center, housed in the College of Business at San José State University, is pleased to announce two annual research competitions – Best Global Leadership Article and Best Global Leadership Dissertation. Submissions should advance the literature on global leadership and its development rather than focusing on expatriate or comparative leadership. Global leaders should be defined as leaders involved in global work with followers from multiple countries, along the lines of the following definitions.

Global Leadership Definitions:

- "The process of influencing the thinking, attitudes and behaviors of a global community to work together synergistically toward a common vision" (Astin & Leland, 1991; Adler, 2001)
- "The process of influencing others from various cultures to adopt a shared vision through structures and methods that facilitate positive change while fostering individual and collective growth in a context characterized by significant levels of complexity, flow and presence" Adapted from (Mendenhall, Reiche, Bird, Osland, 2012: 8)

Submissions can be nominated by the authors or other scholars. The winners are chosen by a committee of global leadership scholars from various universities based on these criteria: rigor, relevance to global leadership, and significant contribution to the field. The awards are accompanied by a prize of $1,500.

To Qualify:

In addition to addressing the topic of global leadership, articles should have a 2013 publication date; dissertations should be completed and approved in 2013 and include an acknowledgement of completion from your university or advisor.

The submission deadline is January 31, 2014. Please email submissions to Dr. Joyce Osland, Executive Director, at glac-group@sjsu.edu.
