

Department of Health Science Careers in General

Health Science graduates are everywhere! The basic and practical skills learned in our undergraduate program can be used in professions and careers such as:

- ❖ Health Care, HMO, and Hospital Administration
- ❖ Marketing and Public Relations
- ❖ Biotechnology Research and Development
- ❖ Pharmaceutical Sales and Clinical Trials
- ❖ Health Communications and Media
- ❖ Health-Related Software and Internet Development
- ❖ Health Education and Health Promotion
- ❖ Counseling and Patient Education
- ❖ Patient or Client Relations
- ❖ Community Organizing
- ❖ Worksite Wellness
- ❖ Long-term Care Facility Programs or Administration
- ❖ Policy and Government
- ❖ Teaching and Education
- ❖ And much, much more!!

Recent graduates have found employment with a wide range of agencies and organizations, including:

State and County Health Departments

- ❖ Tuberculosis Prevention
- ❖ HIV/AIDS Prevention and Health Services
- ❖ Tobacco Control
- ❖ Child Immunization
- ❖ Mental Health
- ❖ Domestic and Community Violence Prevention

Voluntary Agencies:

- ❖ American Lung Association
- ❖ American Heart Association

- ❖ American Cancer Society

Health Care and Health Research Organizations

- ❖ Stanford University Hospital and Medical Center
- ❖ Kaiser Permanente
- ❖ Planned Parenthood
- ❖ San Jose Medical Group
- ❖ The Women's Health Initiative
- ❖ Community Health Partnerships
- ❖ La Clinica de la Raza
- ❖ Northern California Cancer Program

Technology, Communications, and Biotechnology

- ❖ CISCO Systems
- ❖ Sony Corporation
- ❖ Apple
- ❖ Genentech
- ❖ Alza
- ❖ Lifescan

Other Organizations

- ❖ Asian Americans for Community Involvement
- ❖ Girls, Inc.
- ❖ Catholic Charities

Post-Baccalaureate Education

Our graduates have pursued advanced degrees in Public Health, Health Services Administration, Business, Social Work, Nursing, and Medicine, among others. Some go right on to graduate school, while many choose to work for a few years before going on for additional education. The Health Science degree is a flexible and well-respected foundation for many graduate programs.