Performance Review
Frequently Asked Questions

Q. When is a probationary performance review needed?

When there is a...

- New Hire employee full-time (.50 FTE or more)
- New Hire employee part-time (.49 FTE or less)
- *Change to a new classification within same department (voluntary or involuntary)
- *Change to a new classification in a different department (voluntary or involuntary)
- Change to a new classification that is in a different bargaining unit
- In Class Progression

*If it is a lateral move and employee has already obtained permanency, then no probationary review needed.

For example, if employee is a permanent ASC I and is moving to another ASC I classification within same (or different) department, then no probationary review is needed. Same with Technical Levels - If permanent employee is moving from a Career Level position to another Career Level position regardless of if it is within the department or different, no probationary review is required.

Q. My employee has not been reviewed since 2012. How do I bring him/her back on the evaluation track with the new cycle? Can I do one evaluation for the missing years?

An employee can only be evaluated for a maximum period of 12 months. Do one review for the most current cycle only.

Q. Do I need to attach a position description and/or self-evaluations with the final performance review?

No, it is not needed. However, it is a good idea to review the positions description with the employee to be sure that it is current. Self-evaluations are a tool for the manager to determine where gaps may be in how the employee views their work versus how it is viewed by the manager. It is not an official document.

Q. Can you clarify on how to answer the following two (2) questions that are on the first page of the CSUEU evaluation form: 1) Has current Position Description been discussed and is it up to date? 2) Any changes to current Position Description since last Annual Performance Review?

1) If the position description you are evaluating your employee is current during their evaluation period, then answer “Yes.

2a) Answer “Yes” if there have been any changes to the employee’s position description.
If you have any questions regarding your employee’s PD, please work with Workforce Planning.

2b) If there are no changes during the evaluation period, then answer “No”.

For questions 1 & 2, you can always contact Employee Relations to view your employee’s position description.

Q. What if my employee wants to bring their union representative or shop steward to the evaluation meeting?

A meeting regarding the employee’s performance evaluation is not considered disciplinary and is not an investigatory meeting that will lead to discipline. Therefore, you are not obligated to allow a shop steward or union representative to be present at this meeting.

Q. Can a Human Resources Representative be present at the meeting?

The performance evaluation discussion is a great way for the supervisor and employee to build trust and rapport even when discussing difficult or uncomfortable topics relating to performance. Human Resources can offer support and guidance through the process, but outside of the actual meeting.

Q. What if the employee refuses to sign the evaluation?

Please write “Employee refused to sign” on the document. A signature acknowledges that a discussion took place and does not mean that the employee agrees with the evaluation. This verbiage is stated on the signature page of the evaluation.

Q. What if the employee is not available due to a leave or vacation? Do we wait until the employee comes back to do the evaluation?

If the employee is on vacation, the supervisor must make the appropriate arrangements to complete the draft evaluation. Once the employee returns from vacation, he/she should be provided sufficient time, as required by the CBA, to review the draft and provide feedback prior to having the final evaluation.

For leaves, employees should only be evaluated during the period they actually worked. If an employee took a 3-month approved leave of absence, the time is not counted in his/her evaluation. Additionally, if the employee is on probation, his/her probation may be extended per the CBA (please consult with Human Resources).

Q. When should I complete the probationary performance review for my employee?

You should assess the employee’s performance during their respective probationary time periods. The probationary performance evaluation should then be completed within two weeks after their full probationary time period. Each CBA has a different timeline for probationary employees.

For example: If a 6-month evaluation needs to be completed for an employee and their 6-month ends on November 30, then the meeting should take place with the employee after November 30, but no later than December 11.

*Please note that employee status (i.e. bargaining unit, confidential or MPP) will determine the probationary period cycles. Please consult with the Office for Equal Opportunity and Employee Relations or the appropriate Collective Bargaining Agreement regarding probationary review period.

Q. What if my Employee has a personnel action (such as change in position/department/bargaining unit) during the middle of the annual evaluation period? For example: If my employee, an SSPI who is a permanent employee is promoted to a SSP II on August 15. How should I handle the evaluation dates?

Please use appropriate dates of when the employee was in the position/department being evaluated. In this example, the annual evaluation dates for this employee would run from April 1 thru August 14. Keep in mind that this change results in a new probationary period for that employee.

The dates should coincide with the information in PeopleSoft. Please contact the Office for Equal Opportunity and Employee Relations for guidance on evaluation dates.

Q. Are reviews needed for Special Consultants?

No, reviews are not required for Special Consultants.

Q. Are reviews needed for temporary employees?

Although it is not required to review temporary employees, it is highly recommended to do the review. As a best practice, we recommend that any employee with a temporary appointment period of 6-months or longer be evaluated. Please use the Annual Performance Evaluation Form and indicate on the form that this employee is “Temporary”.

Q. I was not the employee’s supervisor for a majority of the review period, should I still be the evaluator?

Yes, you are considered the supervisor of this employee. You may want to look at prior evaluations and talk to individuals that may have observed or have knowledge of the employee’s performance during the evaluation period to assist you with completing the evaluation. Also, use this meeting as a time to focus on goals and expectations for the coming year, since these may have changed given shifting demands and new priorities.
TIPS and TOOLS

There are two (2) reports in PeopleSoft that can be utilized to assist with ensuring accuracy when completing general information. These reports capture all active and leave employees, excluding Unit 3, Unit 11 and E99 employees, and provide general employee information.

How to Run the Report:

- Navigate to mySJSU Login (Oracle/PeopleSoft)
- Login with your SJSU ID and Password
- Navigate to Query Manager:
  Main Menu → Reporting Tools→ Query → Query Manager
- Input Query Name and click on “Search”

- The report can be ran by HTML, Excel, or XML. It is recommended that the report be run in Excel.
- Click on the “Excel” link
You will be prompted to enter either a Department ID or an Employee ID. The example above is a screenshot of when prompted by a Department ID.

If you use Report Name: HR_STAFF_CONF_MPP_RPTTO_EMPLID
- Prompted by Employee ID (9 digits)
- Displays list of employees that report to the Employee ID inputted in the prompt

If you use Report Name: HR_STAFF_CONF_MPP_BY_DEPT
- Prompted by Department ID (4 digits)
- Displays list of employees with the Department ID inputted in the prompt

Click on “View Results”
Notes Regarding Query Reports:

- The date you run the report is when data is captured.
- The “Posn Dt” field refers to the effective date of when the employee started that position.
- The “Job Title” field is the employee’s classification.
- The “Title” field is the employee’s working title.
- The “Grade” field is useful if the employee’s classification is within the Information Technology Series. The “Grade” field corresponds to the skill level.
  - Grade 1 = Foundation
  - Grade 2 = Career
  - Grade 3 = Expert
  - For Example: If the title is “Analyst/Programmer” and the “Grade” is “2”, then the Classification is “Analyst/Programmer, Career”.
