

ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE 180/184

COURSE DESCRIPTIONS

- AJ 180: Individual Studies:
Individual Work on special projects
- AJ 184 Directed Reading:
Designed to meet individual needs or problems

COURSE ORIENTATION

Both AJ 180/184 provide students with an opportunity to interact with a faculty member on an individual basis, while pursuing either a research project (AJ 180) or a critique of a specialized topic area(s) (184) or other appropriate research activities. Each course may be taken for 1-3 semester units. The number of units taken determines the quantity of the students activities; qualitative expectations are the same regardless of the amount of work.

COURSE EXPECTATIONS

While the nature and type of activities may vary with each student, in general, the following guidelines apply to the amount and type of work required of students.

- AJ 180 - 10-15 page paper for each semester unit of credit received, or an acceptable substitute (e.g., assist on a faculty research project).
- AJ 184 - 10-15 page written critique of texts and/or journal articles for each semester unit of credit received.

SELECTION OF STUDENT ACTIVITY

Research projects, and/or books or articles to be critiqued, will be determined jointly by the student and professor. In some instances, the professor may require the students to do research or reading in a specific area. When this is the case, it will be made clear to the student at the time of enrollment in the course.

ENROLLMENT PROCEDURE

Contact professor in your area of interest prior to registration.

EVALUATION OF STUDENTS

AJ 180/184 are graded on a credit/no credit basis. Specific requirements for grading are provided to students by the professor with whom they are working.

WITHDRAWALS AND CHEATING

University policy will be followed.
