This course examines the role of law enforcement in American society from a variety of disciplinary perspectives. Topics include the history of law enforcement in the United States, theories of policing, the organization of police agencies, strengths and weaknesses of present-day
American law enforcement, the relationship of police to other parts of the criminal justice system, and challenges facing police forces today. Although primarily designed for AJ majors and minors, this course is also appropriate for non-majors who are interested in law, justice, crime, socio-legal studies, and American legal and political institutions.

Required Text:

at the SJSU and other local textbook stores.

Occasional supplementary readings may be made available during the semester.

Class Participation, Requirements, and Grading:

You are responsible for keeping up with the assigned reading and being prepared to discuss it in class. (Class participation helps your learning and your grade.)

During class, please make sure your cell phones and pagers are silent.

Exams will cover both lectures and reading assignments. Some material discussed in class will not be in the readings; similarly, not everything discussed in the readings will be covered in class.
Thus it is very important that you both keep up with the reading and attend class regularly.
Students will be excused from class for legitimate medical reasons and for university-related engagements (e.g., athletics). Whenever possible, if you must miss class please inform the instructor ahead of time.
Your grade will be based on 3 exams, 4 short (2 page) writing assignments, and class participation. Your grade will be calculated as follows:

Exams: 600 points

Midterm 1: 200 points
Midterm 2: 200 points
Final: 200 points

Writing Assignments: 50 points each, total of 200 points

Class Participation: 50 points

850 points

Your scores for each test and assignment will be added together, and your total points at the end of the semester will determine your grade. Final grades will be curved (you are measured against the performance of the rest of the class).

All exams are closed-book, closed-note. Exams will include short-answer questions and one essay question. The exam format will be reviewed before each test.

The writing assignments will be reflection pieces based on the readings and discussions, and designed to help you analyze the course material and/or apply it to a real life situation. You may be asked to find and analyze a newspaper or magazine article or review law enforcement websites. No other research will be required. However, you will need to integrate readings and discussions into your assignments. Thus, you cannot wait until the night before the exam to do the reading.

You must take the final exam to pass the course. Students who do not take the final will receive an AF or an AI for the course, at the instructor's discretion, regardless of their class average prior to the final. In accordance with University policy, students caught cheating or plagiarizing will also receive an AF grade for the course.

Late papers and missed exams:

Papers: papers will be marked down 5 points for each day they are late (including weekends). Papers more than ten days late will not be accepted. When submitting late papers, be sure to have the AJ Department receptionist mark the date it was received; you may also fax or email your paper if it is late.

Exams: only one exam can be made up, and only if you have a good reason for missing the exam (e.g., serious illness with physician's note). Make-up exams are longer and involve more writing than the regular exams. The make-up exam day is the last day of class, and it is your responsibility to notify the professor that you intend to take a make-up exam.

There will be no exceptions made to the late paper and missed exam policies.
