COURSE DESCRIPTION
Examination of a range of penal ideas and practices; includes historical analysis of punishment, overview of theoretical perspectives and empirical social science research on punishment and alternative sanctions and implications for contemporary penal policy.

COURSE OVERVIEW
This seminar provides a critical reconstruction of some recent transformations of punishment and social control in the United States. Since the mid-1970s, a long cycle of “domestic wars” (i.e., war on drugs, war on crime, war on welfare, war on immigration) has reshaped American society, turning the United States into the world’s most punitive democracy. In turn, this “punitive turn” (exemplified, among other things, by mass-incarceration, draconian drug-laws, the resurgence of the death penalty, and increasingly harsh anti-immigration laws), has contributed to consolidate social inequality along the lines of race, class, gender, and ethnicity.

The seminar will analyze these developments not only from a variety of scholarly perspectives, but also from the point of view of those “public enemies” who represent the main targets of the American punitive turn (e.g., drug dealers, gang members, undocumented migrants, ghetto hustlers, street criminals), but whose voices are usually silenced in public and academic discourses about crime and punishment. Therefore, throughout the seminar students will be exposed both to theoretical critiques of the American penal landscape, and to first-hand ethnographic (and cinematographic) narratives of the “underworlds” targeted by the new punitiveness.
COURSE OBJECTIVES
The main objective of this seminar is to help students develop a scholarly informed critical understanding of the inner contradictions of punitive penal policies in the United States. In order to achieve this objective, students will be encouraged to observe the consequences of the American punitive turn particularly from the point of view of the communities and social groups most affected by these trends. This is an interactive seminar based on intensive reading and discussion. Although the instructor will introduce and illustrate the main issues and topics in order to facilitate the debate, the success of this learning experience is heavily dependent on the students’ active participation to the seminar. Therefore, all participants should come to class having done the assigned readings, since this is the necessary condition for a productive and meaningful participation.

CLASSROOM PROTOCOL
Attendance: According to University policy F69-24 “Students should attend all meetings of their classes, not only because they are responsible for material discussed therein, but because active participation is frequently essential to insure maximum benefit for all members of the class. Attendance per se shall not be used as a criterion for grading”. Attendance is taken at each class meeting using sign-in sheets.
Etiquette: While in class please turn your cell phone off. If your laptop has wireless access you may use it to access information relevant to the discussion, but please do not read emails, newspapers or other non-class related material during class. Students are encouraged to speak up with questions and comments, and to respond to points raised by other students. However, the maintenance of an effective discussion space in class requires all of us to act with respect for everyone else in the room.
