Classroom Protocol

Each session is a combination of lecture and in-pool instruction. Lectures begin promptly at 7:00PM, and students are responsible for being prepared according to the assignments on the syllabus. At approximately 8:00PM, we will move to the pool for water skill instruction, where students are responsible for providing any required gear as outlined by the instructor, and for active participation. The timing will be flexible, and depends on the material being covered. If students miss a night of class, both a lecture and a pool session are missed, or two instruction sessions – see make up policy below.

There are mandatory ocean activities required in this course. Please see syllabus for scheduled dates.

If a student is present for the instruction, and requires additional assistance with a particular skill, it is the student's responsibility to request assistance. However, if the deficiency is the result of missed class time, see make up policy below.

No cell phone use is allowed during class.

Make up Policy

A. There will be no make ups for missed quizzes, tests, pool skill evaluations, or ocean dives except for documented, serious and compelling reasons. It is the student's responsibility to contact the instructor should such a situation arise. Student is also responsible for all the material covered during any missed lectures and any pool skills taught during missed pool sessions.

B. It may be possible to make up missed water sessions by attending another scuba class taught by the instructor. Ocean dives are difficult to make up, and may result in additional costs to the student. Make-ups will only be allowed/administered when serious and compelling reasons exist. If you miss a session and need to make it up, please discuss the situation with the instructor.
