On September 27 - 28, 2013, the MST Program held its first ever retreat for students. The event started at 2 pm on the SJSU campus with a team-building activity, ethics workshop led by Professor Anne Lawrence, and a presentation by Scott Borgia with Armanino. In the late afternoon, we took the campus shuttle to the SJSU-Utah State football game at Spartan Stadium.

On Saturday we were at Lucas Business Complex in Santa Clara all day for workshops with MST instructor Vince Fong and MST Program Director Annette Nellen on career planning and emotional intelligence. Two practitioners spoke to the group: John Volk with Sensiba San Filippo, and Thomas Sites with KPMG (also an MST alum). MST alum Mike Baird presented a workshop on leadership. We ended the day with dinner at Pedro’s that included a workshop throughout dinner on dining and business etiquette by consultant Gina Snyder. We learned proper place setting, handshaking, how to hold a plate, napkin and glass in one hand, how to network, and more.

Initial results of the post-assessment survey include that 100% of attendees would recommend the event to their classmates and 100% all left with action items to help advance their career. The event was free for students with the costs covered by funds generated from the tax conferences sponsored by the MST Program and TEI, as well as donations from firms.

The purpose of the retreat is to help students get the most out of their graduate studies - going beyond the classroom. To be an effective tax practitioner, one needs broad and deep knowledge of the tax law, excellent tax research skills, and good communication and interpersonal skills. To help students achieve all of this, the MST Program has several co-curricular activities ("Tax Engagement Opportunities"). This includes students delivering financial literacy workshops in the community, attending professional meetings, and writing and editing for the MST journal - The Contemporary Tax Journal (http://www.sjsumstjournal.com).

The next opportunity for MST students to attend the MST Retreat will be spring 2014.
