CENTRAL WEST VIRGINIA CULTURAL AWARENESS QUIZ

James P. Morgan Jr.

You may be proud of your results on I.W., S.A.T., or A.C.T. Tests. However, such tests usually assume a common, middle-class cultural background and a standard vocabulary; it is important to remember that these assumptions are not valid for all populations.

You are to take a quiz that has been designed to test your awareness of the cultural background of central West Virginia. Each item is related to the life experiences and heritage of the people in this mountainous region. Human awareness is usually gained from association with people and from being immersed in their milieu rather than from formal textbooks.

When we consider that many public schools today use both commercially prepared and teacher-constructed tests that are generally standardized according to the middle-class experience, we can begin to appreciate the overwhelming difficulties faced by some of the poor Appalachian youngsters who must take such tests. With the quiz you are about to take, the situation has been reversed. This particular quiz is based on information related to a culture about which you probably have limited firsthand knowledge. You should be aware that your score on this quiz will be used as a basis for various purposes associated with school performances such as grades, job placement, and promotion. Also consider the fact that if you do not happen to pass (70 percent or better), it will be concluded that you are culturally different! The real question is as follows: DO
YOU KNOW AS MUCH ABOUT THE POOR APPALACHIAN’S WORLD AS SUCH A PERSON IS EXPECTED TO KNOW ABOUT YOURS?
