Other Readings
Additional readings will be listed on Canvas.

Classroom Format
For the innovation portion of the course, we will co-inquire and build shared knowledge about innovation, as well as participate in real innovation projects. The global leadership aspect of the course functions like a global leadership assessment center. Students undergo a battery of assessment instruments that provide them with feedback on their development, work to develop their global skills, and then demonstrate them in simulations and projects. The methodology includes a mix of lectures, cases, experiential exercises, group projects, and especially skill-building exercises. The most effective method for teaching skills and cross-cultural sensitivity is via experiential exercises. We will use role plays, exercises, and simulations so that you can pull out your own learning points from these experiences. This type of course requires students to take responsibility for their own learning. In order for an experiential course to be successful, students must do all the reading and homework preparation before class and be present and participate actively in the classroom. Please do not underestimate the importance of participation in this course.

Classroom Protocol
Because the course is taught experientially, attendance and participation are obligatory. Please notify the instructor in advance if an emergency prohibits your attendance. Students are expected to arrive on time. Cell phone use and computer use unrelated to the class are not permitted. In the classroom, COB faculty allow students to use computers only for class-related activities such as taking notes on the lecture underway, following the lecture on Web-based PowerPoint slides that the instructor has posted, and finding Web sites to which the instructor directs students at the time of the lecture. Students who use their computers for other activities or who abuse the equipment in any way, at a minimum, will be asked to leave the class and will lose participation points for the day, and, at a maximum, will be referred to the Judicial Affairs Officer of the University for disrupting the course. (Such referral can lead to suspension from the University.)

Assignments and Grading Policy
All written assignments in the MBA programs will follow the APA format.

Final Exam
The test will measure your knowledge of the assigned readings, the textbook chapters, and your ability to decode the cultural and global leadership behavior found in vignettes and dialogues. The format is multiple choice questions, brief cases and vignettes to analyze, and short essay questions.

Cultural Observation
Your goal in this assignment is to learn to be a participant-observer. Since we are hoping to hone your observation skills, we will use lessons from anthropologists who are experts in ethnography. You are asked to attend a cultural event (not from your own cultural background), practice your observation skills and interviewing skills, and write a reflection on your experience. The reflection guide is found on Canvas. Examples of such events might be cultural festivals or celebrations, invitations to religious celebrations, etc. Look at http://www.ethnicevents.com/ for ideas. If you are unsure if your event will be acceptable, check with the instructor beforehand. Immerse yourself as much as possible in this experience so you really get a taste of what the other culture is like. Interview two cultural informants. Pay attention to your reactions. The purpose of the assignment is to help you develop a global mindset, become more interculturally competent and develop global leadership competencies.

Leadership Innovation Project

In this project, students work in assigned multicultural teams to diagnose a need, come up with an innovative solution with multiple stakeholders, and present the solution. For more project details and grading criteria, look on Canvas. The project’s purpose is to provide students with an opportunity to practice developing a global mindset, become more interculturally competent, develop global leadership competencies, and learn to foster innovation in themselves and others. There is a slacker penalty on this project; team members will evaluate whether or not all members deserve the same project grade, based on their contributions. If, for example, a member only did half of what they were assigned, they should receive only 50% of the team's final grade.

Assessment Instruments and Reflections

A key aspect of leadership development is self awareness and knowing your strengths and weaknesses. You will be asked to complete several assessment instruments throughout the course that will provide you with personal feedback (these instruments do not determine your grade) on competencies related to global leadership. You will also receive developmental feedback from peers. You will be asked to reflect upon and analyze the feedback from these instruments and what you have learned during the course to create an action plan for continued personal development. The instructions for the assessments and the journal assignments are found in Canvas. The purpose of these activities is to help you develop a global mindset, become more interculturally competent, and develop global leadership competencies.

Personal Development Plan, Progress Reports and Report

Another important part of leadership development is the habit of continuous learning and personal development and reflection. For this reason, you are to create a personal development plan and submit weekly entries on your progress. The purpose of these activities is to help you develop a global mindset, become more interculturally competent, and develop global leadership competencies.

Innovation Chapter Presentation

Students will be assigned an innovation chapter to present to the class in a creative fashion. They will then lead a discussion of how the key points could be applied. The purpose of this assignment is to master innovation theory and learn to foster innovation in oneself and others.
