Course Description
The purpose of the Legal and Ethical Environment of Business is to provide students with an understanding of the nature, function and application of the U.S. legal system as it applies to the modern business environment. Understanding the basic concepts and structure of the U.S. legal system will incorporate an emphasis on ethics and business decision making and include covering of the following: legal constraints on internal and external organizational operations, contracts, external regulation, legal and ethical accountability through litigation, modes of resolution of legal disputes, contracts, torts, employment, product liability, bankruptcy, and appreciation of the international context.

Course Learning Outcomes
Course Learning Goals for Business 80 are derived from the BSBA Program Learning Goals: specifically, goals 3 (ethics) and 5 (critical thinking) are addressed in this course. All the BSBA Goals are listed below this section on learning outcomes for the course.

Upon successful completion of this course, students will be able to: Upon successful completion of this course, students will be able to:

1. Demonstrate an understanding of the following: sources of the law; the legal process, including federal and state systems; resolution of legal disputes, including alternative dispute resolution; the law of agency, significant laws affecting employment; business organizations and their economic and social roles; torts, contracts; creditors’ rights and bankruptcy.

2. Recognize and analyze how the law and ethics affect internal and external business operations and how an understanding of the law assists in predictions of whether certain actions will be legal.

3. Demonstrate an ability to engage in critical analysis by comprehending and analyzing legal and ethical issues in the workplace and the marketplace as well as how those problems can be effectively resolved in a legal and ethical manner (COB goal 3, goal 5).

Lucas College and Graduate School of Business Program Goals

Upon successful completion of this course, students will be able to:

Required Texts/Readings

Textbook

The Beatty and Samuelson, Business Law and the Legal Environment, Standard Edition, Sixth Edition. Cengage: Southwestern (ISBN 978-1-11-53060-0). Please note that there is a newer edition, which is considerably more expensive; therefore, the sixth edition is the required edition to save costs. The later edition (7th) will not have the same content, so the 6th edition is needed. Earlier ‘custom’ editions(ISBN 13: 128589503-1) with limited chapters will be in limited supply at Spartan Bookstore and should offer at least the following chapters: 1, 2, 3, 4, 6, 7, 10-18, 28-31. A soft cover copy of the standard textbook, containing all chapters, might be available at the Spartan Bookstore for a price that may be less than used editions sold at Spartan Bookstore or on the internet. A reading assignment will be given on the first day of class. No copies will be made available for this course on reserve at the library. You will not have to bring the textbook to class.

Other Readings

Cases as assigned, often using King Library databases, or other material on the internet. Research may require use of SJSU databases. Lexis Nexis is available for finding cases by entering the names of the parties in the relevant search boxes.

Course Requirements and Assignments

A. Doing well requires at a minimum reading the assigned chapters before class. Much of the material will be new; the classroom is the way to prepare well for all assignments and tests by clarifying your understanding. Powerpoints are available on Canvas so time in class should not be spent copying overheads but listening to lectures and discussion so that you can take notes and ask questions. If you want to ask a question after class, please come up and see me; there is usually time to respond to questions about clarification. However, asking questions in class is beneficial for me and for the class, so you are encouraged to do so as well as to raise any particular issues, perhaps a news story, that may be relevant.

B. Problem analysis. A legal or ethical and sometimes both legal and ethical analysis in writing based on assigned questions, which might come from the textbook (You will not choose the questions. Check Canvas modules and assignments for problem analysis questions and due dates.) The goal is to provide you with an opportunity to apply legal and ethical analysis based on the book, lectures, and class discussion so that you can evaluate your understanding. To accomplish this, it is important you attend class for review of the answers and hand in your responses (hard copy) when role is called at the beginning of class. Responses may be written or typed. That way, if a computer fails or a printer is unavailable, you may turn in a handwritten response to avoid a grade of no credit (0). Responses that do not follow instructions, which will provide the means for proving use of the textbook and handouts and requirements for submission (including length), will not receive credit. Instructions will be covered in class for assignments as well as on Canvas for problem analysis assignments.

C. Group work Individual Record: (Course learning goals1, 2, 3, 4[COB] 2,3,5]. Some group work in class (not all) will be a Group work Individual Record assignment. You will be responsible for participating in a group assigned/created in that class to solve one or more problems using legal and ethical concepts.
The same day, you must submit, in class, the written record of your group’s work, your contribution to it, and your reflections on how the problem(s) reflected/used/required use of legal and ethical concepts presented in the textbook (page references) as well as lectures.

D. Midterms (Essay and Scantron) and Final (scantron) (Course Learning goals1, 2, 3, [COB 5]) The scantron midterms and the final is always a T&E 200 form. You must attend class on the day your class examinations are given to gain credit. Your student ID is required on the first day of class and for each in-class test (midterms, final, or other type of in-class assignment).

Final Examination or Evaluation

The final examination, as noted above, will be a true/false/multiple choice examination requiring that you bring a T&E 200 test form as well as your student ID (required for all examinations or any type of in-class assignment). You must be available in class on the date/time of your final examination (in class) to receive credit.

Grading Information (Required)

All students must be available to take the final examination in class during the time SJSU has scheduled: see the SJSU final exam schedule and this syllabus.

Most assignments must be submitted by hard copy in class. If there are any exceptions, these would be announced in the assignment instructions on Canvas or granted by me in an email only after there has been a timely request (See missed assignments under Determination of Grades.. Any Canvas uploaded submissions must be in doc, docx. or pdf forms unless entering a text is required. Other files will not be given credit, so please see me when assignment instructions appear on Canvas if you have any questions about submissions..

All assignments and examinations described above should reflect appreciation and comprehension of material covered in lectures as well as assigned reading in the textbook or in other sources announced in class. The ability to analyze problems from a legal and ethical perspective while articulating relevant principles will be measured in assignments and examinations. By making a note of your scores, as they are recorded on Canvas, you will be able to track your progress. The final examination may be cumulative, but the final examination will emphasize material covered after the last midterm. Each assignment above is followed by each one of the ‘learning objectives’ listed that the requirement meets. Instructions for Assignments posted on Canvas must be followed for credit and specific criteria for grading presented in instructions noted and met. Meeting specific criteria for achieving assignment goals will be considered in grading. Organization, development and clarity are important for assignments requiring written work. Take time to write drafts, edit, and communicate to show what you are learning and appreciate. See below for the percentage scale for letter grades and the weight given particular assignments.

Determination of Grades

- Please review the description of grading criteria above as well as specific criteria set out for assignments on Canvas. The tables provide information to help you determine your progress. Please see me if you have any questions at any time. Grades will be posted on Canvas. Feedback is provided with grades when assignments are reviewed in class. Please see me whenever you are interested in discussing material we are covering or any assignment.

- Late/missed assignments. During the course, all assignments, quizzes, and midterms must be taken/submitted on time to avoid a grade of no credit. If there is a particularly compelling circumstance that justifies a late/missed assignment, I should be contacted by email as soon as possible (usually the same day) and I will consider evidence/documentation to support the reason (doctor’s note, etc.) when determining whether a makeup is in order or a timely submission by email attachment (by 8:30 am for any problem analysis assignment). In some circumstances, points may be taken off, even if a make up is allowed, in fairness to other students. In other circumstances, a makeup will not be in order. Note that timely communication of the circumstances is very important for consideration. Note also that any makeup may differ from the original assignment in terms of the instrument/method (an essay exam may be substituted for a scantron test.).

- There is no extra credit. If an unsatisfactory grade is received on one Problem Analysis assignment, there may be an opportunity to raise the grade by attending class four days (back to back) and vocally participating in class in a manner that evidences your preparation and readiness to contribute to further class discussion on relevant topics. (Volunteering commentary, answering questions, and so forth). You must see me if you are interested in this opportunity. This would ultimately require submitting a paper (after day four) documenting your participation each day. Any change in a grade would depend on the quality and quantity of the participation. The point of this opportunity would be to improve preparation and engagement. See the Canvas module for specific instructions, which must be followed for any credit.
Classroom Protocol

There may be no photographing or videotaping or recording during the class without my permission. (See Consent for Recording section below.)

Examination materials may not be removed from the classroom. Any exception will be announced in class.

Electronic devices such as laptops etc. may only be used for taking notes or looking at overheads (posted on Canvas) addressing Business 80 classwork issues (accessing the textbook if it is an ebook and so forth) during class. It is easy to be tempted to accomplish other tasks with such devices, but it is important to ensure that all students are focusing on the work at hand for mutual benefit. Unrelated uses will result in withdrawal of permission to use the device during the semester and could lead to a request to leave the class unless the policy is followed thereafter. If you have any questions, just let me know. I appreciate your understanding.

Announcements concerning assignments and scheduling will be made in class, including any modifications to the syllabus. In special circumstances, I might contact the class. Each student is expected to have an email account so that I may contact the class as needed, usually through Canvas, sometimes through MYSJSU. You do not need to provide me with your email account as long as the College of Business or University has this account on file.

No one is to leave the classroom during an examination or quiz without permission, and no examination materials may be removed from the class without permission, even when examinations are returned.

No one may leave the classroom without permission while any returned examination is being reviewed.

Academic honesty is vital.

Please turn off cell phones, avoid texting and so forth.

- “Common courtesy and professional behavior dictate that you notify someone when you are recording him/her. You must obtain the instructor’s permission to make audio or video recordings in this class. Such permission allows the recordings to be used for your private, study purposes only. The recordings are the intellectual property of the instructor; you have not been given any rights to reproduce or distribute the material.”

- “Course material developed by the instructor is the intellectual property of the instructor and cannot be shared publicly without his/her approval. To ensure that every student, current and future, who takes courses in the Boccardo Business Center has the opportunity to experience an environment that is safe, attractive, and otherwise conducive to learning, the Lucas College and Graduate School of Business at San José State has established the following policies:

Eating:
Eating and drinking (except water) are prohibited in the Boccardo Business Center. Students with food will be asked to leave the building. Students who disrupt the course by eating and do not leave the building will be referred to the Judicial Affairs Officer of the University.

Cell Phones:
Students will turn their cell phones off or put them on vibrate mode while in class. They will not answer their phones in class. Students whose phones disrupt the course and do not stop when requested by the instructor will be referred to the Judicial Affairs Officer of the University.

Computer Use:
In the classroom, faculty allow students to use computers only for class-related activities. These include activities such as taking notes on the lecture underway, following the lecture on Web-based PowerPoint slides that the instructor has posted, and finding Web sites to which the instructor directs students at the time of the lecture. Students who use their computers for other activities or who abuse the equipment in any way, at a minimum, will be asked to leave the class and will lose participation points for the day, and, at a maximum, will be referred to the Judicial Affairs Officer of the University for disrupting the course. (Such referral can lead to suspension from the University.) Students are urged to report to their instructors computer use that they regard as inappropriate (i.e., used for activities that are not class related).

Academic Honesty:
Faculty will make every reasonable effort to foster honest academic conduct in their courses. They will secure examinations and their answers so that students cannot have prior access to them and proctor examinations to prevent students from copying or exchanging information. They will be on the alert for plagiarism. Faculty will provide additional information, ideally on the green sheet, about other unacceptable procedures in class work and examinations. Students who are caught cheating will be reported to the Judicial Affairs Officer of the University, as prescribed by Academic Senate Policy S04-12.

University Policies (Required)
Per University Policy S16-9, university-wide policy information relevant to all courses, such as academic integrity, accommodations, etc. will be available on Office of Graduate and Undergraduate Programs’ Syllabus Information web page at http://www.sjsu.edu/gup/syllabusinfo/
