

Farmworker's Daughter— Growing Up Mexican In America By Rose Castillo Guilbault

Opportunity to meet the author and learn more about her story.

Thursday, October 11, 2007

3—4:30 pm

King Library, 2nd floor

Author remarks, Q&A, book signing

The book is available at the Spartan Bookstore and your local library.

Rose Castillo Guilbault is an alum of SJSU having earned a BA in Journalism. She is also a graduate of Pepperdine (MBA) and the University of San Francisco (MA). She is Vice President of Corporate Affairs and Publishing for AAA of Northern California, Nevada and Utah. She is publisher of VIA Magazine, the 21st largest consumer magazine in the United States with a circulation of 2.78 million. In 2006, Governor Schwarzenegger appointed Ms. Guilbault to the California Community Colleges Board of Governors. Ms. Guilbault has received several awards for writing and for community service including the Eleanor Roosevelt Humanitarian Award from the San Francisco United Nations Association. Farmworker's Daughter is the story of her life, starting in Mexico where she was born, to her life as a young girl growing up in California. For more information about Ms. Guilbault and the book, please visit www.farmworkersdaughter.com.

The SJSU Campus Reading Program
www.sjsu.edu/reading/

