Course Description

This course explores some of the following questions. Is the individual the master of his or her own destiny? What is the relationship between the individual and society? By taking a more macro-micro, holistic, and interdisciplinary approach, this course examines the interaction between the individual and social forces such as the external and internal constraints of economic, political, and cultural institutional forces that shape and construct an individual’s reality and identity. Students in this course will learn about the relationship between structure and agency, which is a core concern in field of sociology.

Classroom Protocol

Teaching and learning are most likely to take place in a classroom environment that is characterized by mutual respect and freedom from unnecessary distractions. It is very distracting when students engage in private conversations, talk or text on cell phones, listen to headphones, read newspapers, or surf and face-book on the Internet. Cell phones and similar devices must be adjusted so that they do not ring or beep during class. Laptops and other devises are only allowed for note taking.

In addition, an exchange of ideas is more likely to occur in an atmosphere free from ridicule, insults, or personal attacks. An exercise of common courtesy on the part of both the instructor and the students will enhance the success of this class. Please come to class prepared to discuss the issues in the reading. You will be call upon on occasion to response with comments about the reading and their larger relevance.

No recording devices are allowed in this class under ANY circumstances (please read below).

COURSE REQUIREMENTS AND ASSIGNMENTS

SJSU classes are designed such that in order to be successful, it is expected that students will spend a minimum of forty-five hours for each unit of credit (normally three hours per unit per week), including preparing for class, participating in course activities, completing assignments, and so on. More details about student workload can be found in University Policy S12-3 at http://www.sjsu.edu/senate/docs/S12-3.pdf.

Course Evaluation & Grading Policies

Your final course grade will depend on the following:

1. Midterm (150 points) will consist of short responses (in class).
2. Final (200 points) will consist of short responses (in class). The final will not be cumulative, meaning that the exam will cover material since the midterm exam.
3. One Critical Response Paper (150 points). Instructions will be provided during the semester.
4. Small discussion groups (40 points). Throughout the semester there will be small group discussions. The class will be place into small groups who engage in critical collective dialogue and respond in writing to a set of questions and then will report back to the larger class. Each group discussion = 4 points.
5. Two critical reviews of documentaries or movies (14 points). Each is worth 7 points.

Final grade will be based on a 554 point scale.
