

Boilerplate text for College institutional support for RSCA

Please note that you may wish to revise the text below depending on the particular funding opportunity. Feel free to add or rewrite content for your proposal as needed.

The College of Applied Sciences and Arts (CASA) provides strong institutional support for faculty research and scholarship. The College has developed an Organizational Research and Training Unit (ORTU), the Center for Applied Research on Human Services (CARHS), providing research supports for faculty that include statistical consultation, methodological workshops, professional editing services, and connections to on-line resources and training. The College has an Associate Dean for Research who works closely with campus partners such as the Research Foundation, the Tower Foundation, the Office of Research, and the Center for Faculty Development to ensure CASA faculty are informed of all campus resources related to faculty scholarship, and to support faculty throughout the conduct and administration of awarded grants. In addition, in many CASA departments students can receive course credit for working with faculty on research projects.
