This 1960 film tells the story of Macario, a poor woodcutter in pre-Independence Mexico, whose dream is to live a day without hunger. When he finds himself with a full turkey to eat, a mysterious stranger's request to share the meal puts Macario's life on a new and unexpected course. Macario was the first Mexican film to be nominated for an Academy Award.

Macario* is in Spanish with English Subtitles.

The panel discussion after the film will feature professors from San José State's Mexican American Studies Department and Elisa Marina Alvarado, Artistic Director of Teatro Visión.
