If you encounter an error screen like the one to the left when trying to access Writer's Help after allowing pop-ups please do the following;

1. Close the tab or window where the error screen appears
2. Return to your Canvas course
3. Refresh your Browser
4. Click on the Writer's Help link again and you will be taken directly to Writer's Help

You will be able to access Writer's Help without having to register or log on!
