Course Description
English 1B is the second course in SJSU’s two-semester lower-division composition sequence. Beyond providing repeated practice in planning and executing essays, and broadening and deepening students’ understanding of the genres, audiences, and purposes of college writing, English 1B differs from English 1A in its emphasis on persuasive and critical writing (with less attention paid to the personal essay), its requirement for fewer but longer essays, and its introduction to writing informed by research. Students will develop sophistication in writing analytical, argumentative, and critical essays; a mature writing style appropriate to university discourse; reading abilities that will provide an adequate foundation for upper-division work; proficiency in basic library research skills and in writing papers informed by research; and mastery of the mechanics of writing.

Prerequisites: Passage of Written Communication 1A (C or better) or approved equivalent.
Course Goals and Student Learning Objectives

Building on the college-level proficiencies required in English 1A, students shall achieve the ability to write complete essays that demonstrate advanced proficiency in all of the following:

- Clear and effective communication of meaning.
- An identifiable focus (argumentative essays will state their thesis clearly and will show an awareness, implied or stated, of some opposing point of view).
- An appropriate voice that demonstrates an awareness of audience and purpose.
- Careful attention to review and revision.
- Effective and correct use of supporting materials, including independent research (e.g., quoting, paraphrasing, summarizing, and citing sources);
- Effective analysis, interpretation, evaluation, and synthesis of ideas encountered in multiple readings.
- Effective organization and development of ideas at paragraph and essay levels.
- Appropriate and effective sentence structure and diction.
- Command of conventional mechanics (e.g., punctuation, spelling, reference, agreement).

Student Learning Objectives:

SLO 1: Students shall write complete essays that demonstrate the ability to refine the competencies established in Written Communication 1A.

SLO 2: Students shall write complete essays that demonstrate the ability to use (locate, analyze, and evaluate) supporting materials, including independent library research, and identify key concepts and terms that describe the information needed.

SLO 3: Students shall write complete essays that demonstrate the ability to select efficient and effective approaches for accessing information utilizing an appropriate investigative method or information retrieval system.

SLO 4: Students shall write complete essays that demonstrate the ability to synthesize ideas encountered in multiple readings.

SLO 5: Students shall write complete essays that demonstrate the ability to incorporate principles of design and communication to construct effective arguments.

SLO 6: Students shall write complete essays that demonstrate the ability to identify and discuss issues related to censorship and freedom of speech.

Required Texts/Readings

Textbook

Envision: Writing and Researching Arguments, 3rd Edition, Alfano and O’Brien,

ISBN: 978-0-205-75847-0

Other Readings

Additional readings will be posted to the course website (sjsu.desire2learn.com) as needed. Check the course outline below for details.

Other equipment / material requirements (optional)

One spiral notebook. You need to take notes, so you’ll need one of these.

A folder for your essays and homework, all of which you will save until December.

A data storage device of some kind, on which you will save your essays.

A computer with access to the internet and a printer (see below for details).

Highlighters of at least three different colors.

Classroom Protocol

1) Late Assignments

If you are not in class on the day an assignment is due, I will not accept that assignment. (Should you arrive in the last few minutes of class for the sole purpose of turning in your homework, I reserve the right to refuse that assignment.) Later in this packet, you will find four homework coupons. They may be used to hand in assignments up to one week late.

In the event of severe illness or other emergency, an exception might be made as long as the work is accompanied by written verification (only official doctors’ notes will be accepted for this purpose). If you know in advance that you will be absent on a certain day, please make arrangements with me before the absence to turn in the necessary work. Arrangements may never be made after the class has already been missed. By then, it is too late.

2) Required Writing

This is a composition course and, as such, will require significant writing on your part. Over the course of the semester, you will write two major (6-8 page) essays, each of which will be significantly revised three times, as well as a number of smaller essays. You will write essays in and out of class. Any reading that you do will be accompanied by a response blog, which you will use to write at least two of the smaller essays. There is, to put it mildly, a lot of writing in this class. At the end of the semester, you will assemble a portfolio of your work, which will include much of the writing you have done in this class, so hang on to everything.
3) Participation (Reading and cell phones)
Your participation is not optional. In a seminar class, particularly one of this size, if even one person is sitting out discussions or activities the whole class suffers. If you do not have the necessary materials with you, you cannot fully participate. I therefore reserve the right to dock up to five points from your final grade for lack of preparation. Likewise, sleeping, engaging in side conversations, doing other homework, playing with your cell phone, will damage your grade to the degree that I believe they damage the class dynamic. A note on texting during class: A recent experiment at the University of Binghamton demonstrated that students whose attention is on their phones during class score 50 points lower on tests. As such, I may drop your next essay grade by 50 points if I catch you reading or sending text messages during class.

Assignments and Grading Policy
Grading: A-F.
The Department of English reaffirms its commitment to the differential grading scale as defined in the official SJSU Catalog (“The Grading System”). Grades issued must represent a full range of student performance: A = excellent; B = above average; C = average; D = below average; F = failure.

- The “A” essay will be well organized and well developed, demonstrating a clear understanding and fulfillment of the assignment. It will show the student’s ability to use language effectively and construct sentences distinguished by syntactic complexity and variety. Such essays will be essentially free of grammatical, mechanical, and usage errors.
- The “B” essay will demonstrate competence in the same categories as the “A” essay. The chief difference is that the “B” essay will show describable weaknesses in one of those categories. It may slight one of the assigned tasks, show less facility of expression, or contain some minor grammatical, mechanical, or usage flaws.
- The “C” essay will complete all tasks set by the assignment, but show weakness in fundamentals (usually development), with barely enough specific information to illustrate the experience or support generalizations. The sentence construction may be less mature, and the use of language less effective and correct than the “B” essay.
- The “D” essay will neglect one of the assigned tasks and be noticeably superficial in its treatment of the assignment—that is, too simplistic or short. The essay may reveal some problems in development, with insufficient specific information to illustrate the experience or support generalizations. It will contain grammatical, mechanical, and usage errors that render some sentences incomprehensible.
- The “F” essay will demonstrate a striking underdevelopment of ideas and insufficient or unfocused organization. It will contain serious grammatical, mechanical, and usage errors that render some sentences incomprehensible.
Grading:
Class Participation: 50 points
Reading Blogs* (see below): 150 points
Difficulty Papers: 100 points (2 @ 50 points each)
In- and out of class activities: 100 points
Out of Class Essays: 300 points (2 @ 150 points each)
End of Semester Portfolio: 300 points

*Each assignment is graded on a credit/no credit basis – at the end of the semester, the percentage of completed assignments is converted to points.

965-1000 points = A+ 925-964 points = A 895-924 points = A-
865-894 points = B+ 825-864 points = B 795-824 points = B-
765-794 points = C+ 725-764 points = C 695-724 points = C-
665-694 points = D+ 625-664 points = D 595-624 points = D-
<600 points = F

Reading Blogs
There will be a number of reading blogs assigned over the course of the semester, to be written in a designated section on Desire2Learn. Each blog must be at least 250 words long and must discuss, in specific detail with reference to the reading, some point of difficulty or question that you had about it. You might isolate a certain phrase or reference, and discuss how and why you think it confused you. You might choose an argument that the author made which did not make sense. In any event, the blog will serve as a place for you to say “the reading challenged me in this way.” We will use the blogs as a starting point for class discussion, and twice during the semester you will use the blogs to write a longer Difficulty Paper.

Besides the requirements above, the blogs will not be graded on how well you write. In other words, you should not focus on sentence structure, grammar, spelling or mechanics as you write: simply focus you efforts on analyzing an aspect of the reading that challenged you or gave you trouble. As long as you do that, and keep to the required length, you will get credit.

In addition, the blogs will have a response requirement. For each blog assigned, you should comment on another student’s blog. These comments, taken together, will be worth an extra blog entry’s worth of credit (meaning that if you respond to most of the blogs you will receive extra credit worth one blog). You need only respond to one blog entry per assignment, and your response should be at least three sentences long, should respond specifically to some aspect of the entry and should be unique. You can make an entry “unique” in one of two ways: either your response should comment on an significant aspect of the blog that no other commenter has mentioned or it should be the only (or first) comment. Obviously, the easiest way to make sure that you have a “unique” comment is to be the first person to comment on a given blog entry. Like your blog, your comment will not be graded on grammar or sentence structure, only uniqueness and quality of response.

The reading blogs will be worth 15% of your final grade.
Paper Format

Unless you want to lose points, no plastic sheets, title pages or strange fonts, please; just use 8.5x11” paper, 12 point type and one inch margins. All of the pages should be numbered and double-spaced. Staple the pages together. At the top of the first page, insert a title and the proper header. Get in the habit or reading everything you write before you hand it in. If any of these are missing, including page numbers, a staple or the proper header, you will lose ten points off of the final grade of the assignment.

The header: in the top left hand corner of the first page, include your name, my name, the date, the class and the assignment with word-count. Put this at the top of everything you hand in, whether it is a reading response, homework or a long essay. For example:

Samantha Student
English 1B Section 32
25 September 2011
Essay #1: 1567 words

Student Technology Resources

Computer labs for student use are available in the Academic Success Center located on the 1st floor of Clark Hall and on the 2nd floor of the Student Union. Additional computer labs may be available in your department/college. Computers are also available in the Martin Luther King Library.

A wide variety of audio-visual equipment is available for student checkout from Media Services located in IRC 112. These items include digital and VHS camcorders, VHS and Beta video players, 16 mm, slide, overhead, DVD, CD, and audiotape players, sound systems, wireless microphones, projection screens and monitors.

Learning Assistance Resource Center

The Learning Assistance Resource Center (LARC) is located in Room 600 in the Student Services Center. It is designed to assist students in the development of their full academic potential and to motivate them to become self-directed learners. The center provides support services, such as skills assessment, individual or group tutorials, subject advising, learning assistance, summer academic preparation and basic skills development. The LARC website is located at http://www.sjsu.edu/larc/.

SJSU Writing Center

The SJSU Writing Center is located in Room 126 in Clark Hall. It is staffed by professional instructors and upper-division or graduate-level writing specialists from each of the seven SJSU colleges. Our writing specialists have met a rigorous GPA requirement, and they are well trained to assist all students at all levels within all disciplines to become better writers. The Writing Center website is located at http://www.sjsu.edu/writingcenter/about/staff/.
REMINDERS:
* Reading Blogs are due for each essay we read
* Reading assignments should be completed by the day they appear on the schedule for discussion
* The assignments due each day can also be found on the course website, Desire2Learn in the class calendar.

Homework Coupons:
These homework coupons may be used once, and must be handed in with late assignments. They may not be traded. They are not a pass: you must still hand in the assignment, but with a coupon you are allowed to hand it in up to one week late. The top coupon may only be used for reading blogs. The second coupon may be used for any assignment that is not a major essay or a blog. The third coupon may be used for a major essay. The bottom coupon may be used for any assignment that is not a rough draft or a revised draft. This includes team assignments, prewriting and reading blogs. At the end of the semester, unused coupons may be turned in for one point each.
