Course Description

For Spring 2019, the main theme to be explored in English 208 will be “Globalization and Imperialism: Geopolitical Explorations of Literature & Cultural Identity.” From the ancient times to the present, a variety of texts will be selected to exemplify the ways in which transcontinental, transnational, and transcultural geopolitics have played out in the promotion of imperialism and globalization, and in the process in the production of cross-cultural, “trans-borderly,” and hetero-doxical literatures, fashions, and identities. Students are expected contribute to the exploration of embedded themes and discover hidden patterns and formations of meanings, and share their insights as well as the fruits of their labor in this seminar as they contemplate the significance of the course materials.

MA Program Student Learning Objectives (effective 2012)

1. Students will demonstrate an appropriate level of expertise in literary history, literary theory, and rhetoric.
2. Students will demonstrate high-level proficiency in literary research and in the synthesis of research.
3. Students will demonstrate critical and analytical skills in the interpretation and evaluation of literary texts.
4. Students will demonstrate a command of written academic English, including the abilities to a) organize and present material in a cogent fashion, b) formulate and

- defend original arguments, c) employ effectively the language of their discipline and d) write under time constraints.
5. Students will demonstrate a reading knowledge of at least one foreign language.
 6. Students preparing for teaching careers will receive the appropriate instruction.
 7. Students will be prepared for further graduate study.

The MA SLOs articulated above will be exemplified throughout the course; in particular, MA SLOs 1-4 are explicitly addressed in the Course Goals and Student Learning specified below:

Course Goals and Student Learning

SLO 1: Students will demonstrate an appropriate level of expertise in literary history, literary theory, and rhetoric. This objective will be met by means of intensive examinations of a broad range of materials selected from American literary history to determine their thematic connections and implications, as inseminated in this seminar, in the contexts of social history, political thought, and American culture.

SLO 2: Students will demonstrate high-level proficiency in literary research and in the synthesis of research. This objective will be met by means of student-centered activities, such as investigations, presentations, discussions, interactions with peers and experts, and academic inquiries, that lead to the formulation of research questions and the completion of scholarly papers conducive to advancing the knowledge and understanding of the field.

SLO 3: Students will demonstrate critical and analytical skills in the interpretation and evaluation of literary texts. This objective will be met as students of the seminar regularly exchange ideas, share expertise, and conduct informed and critical analysis and evaluation of the course materials.

SLO 4: Students will demonstrate a command of written academic English, including the abilities to a) organize and present material in a cogent fashion, b) formulate and defend original arguments, c) employ effectively the language of their discipline and d) write under time constraints. Student success in achieving this objective will be assessed by means of their written assignments, esp. the research paper.

Seminar Presentations (Three Presentations + Documentation)

A seminar involves seminal ideas that are developed, tested, and applied over a period of time. Ideally, all participants are involved in the insemination, exploration, research, analysis, interpretation, critique, and application of the ideas generated in the seminar. The findings are, eventually, disseminated, shared, and studied further or applied.

Apart from the close analysis and critical discussions revolving around the texts selected, this seminar will involve students in THREE specific kinds of activities, each to be exemplified by presentations and written documentations.

The first kind of activity will be EXPLORATION, which entails preliminary inquiries, research, and collection of bibliographical materials related to the theme of the course. You will give an exploratory presentation (about 20 minutes) during the first five weeks of the seminar about facts, ideas, concepts, texts, and topics that shed light on the seminar's main ideas. Tell us what you have been able to discover that may lead to fruitful further investigations. Provide a few pages of documentation (e.g., working bibliography) as well as a summary of your explorations.

The second kind of activity will be CRITICAL INVESTIGATION. This involves a deepening understanding of the materials, ideas, concepts, issues, and implications of your explorations. You will give a critical/investigative presentation (about 20 minutes) during the next five weeks of the seminar about a topic that gets you hooked; you may wish to pursue an in-depth investigation of something not well understood, or you may wish to theorize/speculate on the possibility of something significant being revealed in the light of the evidence you have at hand. Again, provide a few pages of documentation, and add a statement about your research proposal.

The third kind of activity will be DISSEMINATION OF RESEARCH, which will be done toward the end of the seminar as various threads provided by different members of the seminar begin to work together and get woven into some sort of textile pattern. You will give a conference paper presentation (about 20 minutes) during the last five weeks of the seminar based on the paper you have written or are about to finish writing. Expect to engage the seminar's audience intellectually and academically, and be ready to deal with their professional challenges like a mature scholar. Provide an abstract of your paper and incorporate questions and responses generated in your presentation.

Weekly Performance

You will also be expected to contribute to the flow and exchange of information, ideas, and discoveries every time the seminar convenes. You (individually or as a group) will be given small tasks, ahead of time, so that you can help to cover the background materials and basics in order to move the discussion along during the seminar.

Assignments and Grading Policy*

Course Grading Guidelines

Students are graded on the following matrix of credits involving their critical thinking, reading, writing, research, discussions and presentations, quizzes/tests and exams, group projects, and overall performance:

3 Seminar Presentations	3 X 150 points	= 450 points
100 for the presentation; 50 for the documentation
Research Paper (15+ pages)	1 X 500 points	= 500 points
Weekly Performance	10 X 10 points	= 100 points

TOTAL = 1000 points

* For numerical score and grade equivalents see the following tables:

Table One: Essays

A- = 90 – 93; A = 94 – 96; A+ = 97 – 99

B- = 80 – 83; B = 84 – 86; B+ = 87 - 89

C- = 70 – 73; C = 74 – 76; C+ = 77 – 79

D- = 60 – 63; D = 64 – 66; D+ = 67 – 69

F or below = 0 for essays.

Table Two: Course Grade

A- = 900 – 933; A = 934 – 966; A+ = 967 – 999

B- = 800 – 833; B = 834 – 866; B+ = 867 -- 899

C- = 700 – 733; C = 734 – 766; C+ = 767 – 799

D- = 600 – 633; D = 634 – 666; D+ = 667 – 669

F = 559 or below.

 Students are advised to take note of the following policy statement mandated by the Department of English with regard to grading (effective May 17, 1994):

“The Department of English reaffirms its commitment to the differential grading scale as defined in the official SJSU Catalog ("The Grading System"). Grades issued must represent a full range of student performance:

A=Excellent;

B=Above Average;

C=Average;

F=Failure.

Courses graded according to the A, B, C, No Credit system shall follow the same pattern, except that NC, for No Credit, shall replace D or F. In A, B, C, No Credit courses NC shall also substitute for W (for Withdrawal) because neither NC nor W affects students' grade point averages. This statement shall be included in all Department of English syllabi or greensheets.”

In addition, in English Department courses, “instructors will comment on and grade the quality of student writing as well as the quality of ideas being conveyed. All student writing should be distinguished by correct grammar and punctuation, appropriate diction and syntax, and well-organized paragraphs.”

Departmental Policy on Grading Written Assignments

“In English Department Courses, instructors will comment on and grade the quality of student writing as well as the quality of ideas being conveyed. All student writing should be distinguished by correct grammar and punctuation, appropriate diction and syntax, and well-organized paragraphs. Grades issued will represent a full range of student performance and will adhere to the following SJSU academic standards of assessment:

The “A” essay will be well organized and well developed, demonstrating a clear understanding and fulfillment of the assignment. It will show the student’s ability to use language effectively and construct sentences distinguished by syntactic complexity and variety. Such essays will be essentially free of grammatical, mechanical, and usage errors.

The “B” essay will demonstrate competence in the same categories as the “A” essay. The chief difference is that the “B” essay will show some slight weaknesses in one of those categories. It may slight one of the assigned tasks, show less facility of expression, or contain some minor grammatical, mechanical, or usage flaws.

The “C” essay will complete all tasks set by the assignment, but show weakness in fundamentals (usually development), with barely enough specific information to illustrate the experience or support generalizations. The sentence construction may be less mature, and the use of language less effective and correct than the “B” essay.

The “D” essay will neglect one of the assigned tasks and be noticeably superficial in its treatment of the assignment—that is, too simplistic or short. The essay may reveal some problems in development, with insufficient specific information to illustrate the experience or support generalizations. It will contain grammatical, mechanical, and usage errors that render some sentences incomprehensible.

The “F” essay will demonstrate a striking underdevelopment of ideas and insufficient or unfocused organization. It will contain serious grammatical, mechanical, and usage errors that render some sentences incomprehensible.

Class Policy on Late Assignments and Incompletes

1. Assignments shall be turned in when due. Penalty applies to late take-home assignments at the rate of –10%/day overdue of the actual grade earned; maximum penalty up to 100% deduction of grade earned for the work assigned. There will be no make-up for in-class assignments and quizzes. Exams must be taken at the times and dates scheduled, unless an alternative arrangement is granted by the professor.
2. Essay assignments and research papers must be printed to receive credit.
3. Incomplete course work will result in actual grade earned based on points accumulated; an "I" course grade will not be given without signing a contract with the instructor at least two weeks prior to the last instruction day.

Class Policy on Record Keeping

Keep a record of all assignments you have completed. In particular, save backup copies of your essays/papers. For future portfolio purposes, students—ESPECIALLY MAJORS in English & Comparative Literature--are advised to preserve essays/papers graded and returned to them until graduation.

1. Participation is understood to be an essential aspect of learning in this class. Absence without leave, late arrival, unauthorized breaks, early departure, and inattentiveness will be considered in my evaluation of your participation.
2. The use of cell phones is prohibited.
3. The use of laptops for purposes inconsistent with class activities is prohibited.

Instances of academic dishonesty will not be tolerated. Cheating on exams or plagiarism (presenting the work of another as your own, or the use of another person's ideas without giving proper credit) will result in a failing grade and sanctions by the University. For this class, all assignments are to be completed by the individual student unless otherwise specified. If you would like to include in your assignment any material you have submitted, or plan to submit for another class, please note that SJSU's Academic Policy F06-1 requires approval of instructors.
