Assignments Details & Grading

Readings & Media (Read, Watch & Annotate) 0 Points

Students will be given weekly reading or viewing assignments where they will be required to take good notes, use what they've learned from lectures to annotate the poetry and store their notes for reference later. These assignments have no point value, but they are cumulative and part of the scaffold of learning.

Participation in Workshops 100 Points

Students are expected to attend class and actively participate in class discussions, performances and workshops. Students are allowed 3 missed classes before their grade is affected. The point system for this particular assignment is Full Credit (100 Points), Half Credit (50 Points) and Zero credit. See Course Schedule and Lecture Details for detailed information. Everything will be uploaded to Canvas.

Escamilla's Classroom Community, Disclaimer & Trigger Warnings

My first goal is to create a safe space for all students during their learning process -- that said, this course deals with a number of very difficult and or graphic subjects, topics, and sometimes explicit language within the context of culture and struggle. We also delve into personal accounts that may or may not trigger some students. Sometimes these concepts are supposed to be difficult and talking through that difficulty is part of the process. Students are free to express themselves in this course as they see fit -- it is not a traditional classroom style and I am not a traditional teacher. The topics can be graphic as can the language. If students feel uncomfortable or triggered they are free to leave the discussion and the classroom. If there are larger concerns about content, information, or the graphic and explicit language -- please make an appointment to see me. It is imperative that students feel safe in our classroom.

English 71 GE Course Goals (GELOs):

1. Decipher and understand the form and content of assigned literary works.
2. Comprehend the historical and cultural contexts of assigned literary works.
3. Recognize the accomplishments of and issues related to writing by ~~men and women~~ PEOPLE representing diverse cultural traditions.
4. Acquire through both individual and collaborative workshop efforts of a written and oral nature the skills necessary for reading, discussing, analyzing, interpreting, and--most importantly--emulating and writing works of poetry, creative nonfiction, and short fiction.
5. Communicate such skills with clarity and precision.
6. Develop the ability to write literary works that express intellect and imagination and that represent diversity in human cultures.
7. Respond to literature through clear and effective communication in both written and oral work.
8. Read and respond to texts with both analytical acumen and personal sensibility.
9. Appreciate how literary works illuminate enduring human concerns while also representing matters specific to a particular culture.
10. Write works of poetry, creative nonfiction and short fiction that are interest and value to the writer, to other students in the course and to a diverse reading audience.

Participation & Attendance

Policy F15-12

“Students are expected to attend all meetings for the courses in which they are enrolled as they are responsible for material discussed therein and active participation is frequently essential to ensure maximum benefit to all class members. In some cases, attendance is fundamental to course objectives; for example, students may be required to interact with others in the class. Attendance is the responsibility of the student. Participation may be used as a criterion for grading when the parameters and their evaluation are clearly defined in the course syllabus and the percentage of the overall grade is stated.”

You are adults and are the arbiters of your own education. There will be daily writing assignments which will count towards your final grade as well as participation & Workshop points that will be doled out during class, so it's best you attend class. I make room in the point system for 3 absences. When you are absent please do not email me about your absence, it's unnecessary - I was a student, I understand the difficulties of such a life. No need to add to your anxiety.. Do, however, email a classmate for any notes you've missed. If you're really behind or would like instructions on what you've missed, please make an appointment to see me during office hours.

Class Preparation & Communication

1. Read and annotate reading or media assignments
2. Participate in class discussions or group discussions
3. Assignments must be completed and turned in on time unless you've written for an extension.
4. Send a formal extension request via email at least 1 week before a due date for consideration. This is a case-by-case granting.
