Course Format

Technology Intensive, Hybrid, and Online Courses
This course meets online, via Zoom. I will use Canvas, the SJSU learning management system to publish instructional materials, lessons, and activities. You will submit your work in Canvas discussions; everyone will have access to and use everyone else’s posts for our research. Thus, you will need regular access to the Internet and a computer. To produce and share your work, you will need word processing software (any software that allows you to save files as .doc or .docx) a. Canvas will give you access to Google docs for collaborations, as well as presentation software (i.e. PowerPoint or Google Slides). Canvas includes video and audio recording abilities. If you need help to access these technologies, please contact the Student Technology Service Desk Service Learning (SL) Courses or Credit Bearing Internships (Suggested, if applicable, but not mandatory)

Course Description

In this course, you will write a lot. The major assignments provide practice in three different kinds of writing (genres) adapted to specific purposes, occasions, and audiences. Performing our inquiry into the monomyth across these three genres will incrementally deepen your understanding of rhetorical concepts and hone your writing strategies and skills. They will also give you space to understand yourself, your communities, your place in our world, and the characteristics, communities, and places of others around you.

The readings scheduled in the syllabus we will all read as part of our collaboration to understand how Campbell’s monomyth operates socially. You will also find readings of your own as you explore how the monomyth applies/does not apply to help us think about the social issue you are asking us to explore with you.
Course Goals

In this course, you will explore an issue that matters to you through three major projects: a personal narrative, an expository essay, and a persuasive essay. Reading assignments and discussion board posts will also help you develop your craft as you compose a portfolio and reflect on your progress as a writer.

Upon successful completion of this GE course, students will be able to:

1. Demonstrate the ability to perform the essential steps in the writing process (prewriting, organizing, composing, revising, and editing) and demonstrate an awareness of said performance.
2. Articulate an awareness of and write according to the rhetorical features of texts, such as purpose, audience, context, and rhetorical appeals.
3. Demonstrate college-level language use, clarity, and grammatical proficiency in writing.

Course Learning Outcomes (CLO)

The readings scheduled in the syllabus we will all read as part of our collaboration to understand how Campbell’s monomyth operates socially. You will also find readings of your own as you explore how the monomyth applies/does not apply to help us think about the social issue you are asking us to explore with you.

Required Texts/Readings

Textbook

You will not be required to purchase a textbook for this class. The readings scheduled in the syllabus we will all read as part of our collaboration to understand how Campbell’s monomyth operates socially. You will also find readings of your own as you explore how the monomyth applies/does not apply to help us think about the social issue you are asking us to explore with you. The reading assignments and texts will be provided via canvas.

Other technology requirements / equipment / material

Access to steady wi-fi for zoom sessions.

Course Requirements and Assignments

You will be required to write discussion posts alongside reading assignments. Each post should be around 250 words. Discussion board posts will help you analyze the text and count for 20% of your grade. We will also compose three major writing projects in the personal narrative, the expository essay, and the persuasive essay. Each essay will be composed in stages and will be worth 20% of your grade. Furthermore, each essay will be explained in further detail when assigned. The final project will end with e-portfolio which will also be explained in depth at the date of assignment.

“Success in this course is based on the expectation that students will spend, for each unit of credit, a minimum of 45 hours over the length of the course (normally three hours per unit per week) for instruction, preparation/studying, or course related activities, including but not limited to internships, labs, and clinical practica. Other course structures will have equivalent workload expectations as described in the syllabus.”

Grading Information for GE Area A2 Courses

- The basic skills you learn in this course satisfy GE Area A2. You must pass with a C- or better to earn credits for CSU graduation requirement.
• For 100W (Area Z) courses, include the following statement:

“This course must be passed with a C or better as an SJSU graduation requirement.”

• For upper division GE courses (R, S, V) include the following paragraph:

“Passage of the Writing Skills Test (WST) or ENGL/LLD 100A with a C or better (C- not accepted), and completion of Core General Education are prerequisite to all SJSU Studies courses. Completion of, or co-registration in, 100W is strongly recommended. A minimum aggregate GPA of 2.0 in GE Areas R, S, & V shall be required of all students.”

Classroom Protocol

We will develop a classroom etiquette and discuss what elements are necessary for a safe and respectful learning environment. This information will be posted in Canvas on a collaboration page set up for the discussion of classroom norms.
