GE/SJSU Studies Category: GE C2 Humanities—Letters

Course Description
Like all college-level writing courses, this course is designed to give you the tools to develop your skills as a critical reader and rhetorically-savvy writer.

What makes this course unique is that it is designed specifically for students majoring in Engineering and other STEM fields. English 1B is part of a curriculum re-design project that is the result of a collaboration between the College of Engineering and the College of Humanities & Arts and sponsored by a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Ultimately, you and your classmates will have the rare opportunity this semester to have a say in how this course is designed and how it will work. I have designed this version of the course using the data I collected from ENGL 1B students for the past two semesters. I will be asking for your input at various times throughout this semester so that I can continue to refine the course to meet your needs.

GE Learning Outcomes (GELOs)

Upon successful completion of this GE course, students will be able to:

1. Recognize how significant works illuminate enduring human concerns;
2. Respond to such works by writing both research-based critical analyses and personal responses;
3. Write clearly and effectively.

Course Learning Outcomes (CLOs)

Upon successful completion of this course, students will be able to:

1. Develop and carry out research projects and locate, evaluate, organize, and incorporate information effectively.
2. Use a critical lens to read a variety of literary, rhetorical, and professional works of the human intellect and imagination.
3. Write clearly, effectively, and creatively, and adjust writing style appropriately to the content, the context, and the nature of the subject.
4. Explain how a text both frames and is framed by a variety of critical lenses: cultural, historical, socio-economic, political, and personal.
5. Demonstrate how humanistic methods of reasoning and arguing can prepare students to meet the global challenges facing scientists and engineers.

Meet with Your Embedded Tutor

This semester, our learning community in ENGL 1B includes a course-embedded Writing Tutor, Jessica Ballardo, who has been trained to assist you as you work to achieve the learning goals in this course.

Jessica is available to support you in three ways:

1. She will participate in our class Zoom meetings and in small-group breakout rooms.
2. She is available by online appointment to assist you one-to-one or in small groups with ANYTHING related to your language development. That means she can help you with assignments for our class or for other classes. She might also assist with other writing you might need to do, like filling out an application form or writing a job letter.
3. She can answer questions or point you to resources via email.

Think of Jessica as a person who has been in your shoes, knows a lot, and has access to the resources SJSU has to offer. She can assist you with your writing, but she can also direct you to resources across the university that can help you with many other things, from personal concerns (like coping with stress) to financial concerns (like figuring out how to manage your student loans). Last year, students in this course found that working with a Writing Tutor who knows about this specific fast-tracked their writing development—so take advantage of this resource!
Meeting with your tutor at least once is worth 5% of your final grade in this course.

The Texts We are Using and How to Find Them

The texts we will be reading this semester will all be available to you digitally on Canvas. There is no course textbook to purchase.

Major Writing Assignments

Below, I have included descriptions of the major assignments of our course. Before each assignment, you will receive a detailed prompt which we will review in class. We will also spend our class time preparing to meet the goals of these assignments.

Assignment 1: Tracking the Conversation Essay (Written individually)

In an essay, you will synthesize the texts we have read in the first few weeks of class and make connections between them. You will compose this essay individually.

Assignment 2: Annotated Bibliography

This assignment is your individual contribution to the research you will conduct in teams to prepare for your research report. You will prepare a single annotated bibliography entry individually and be evaluated individually.

Assignment 3: Research Report (Written collaboratively in research teams)

You will compose this essay as a team, practicing the collaborative writing skills you will need to acquire for most careers.

Assignment 4: Final Reflection e-Portfolio

Like all students enrolled in ENGL 1B, you will create a Final Reflection e-Portfolio as the cumulative project for this course. You will create your e-Portfolio individually. This assignment will serve as a final project of the semester (instead of a traditional final exam).

Your Grade

The following statement has been adopted by the Department of English for inclusion in all syllabi:

In English Department Courses, instructors will comment on and grade the quality of student writing as well as the quality of ideas being conveyed. All student writing should be distinguished by correct grammar and punctuation, appropriate diction and syntax, and well-organized paragraphs.

The Department of English reaffirms its commitment to the differential grading scale as defined in the SJSU Catalog.
("The Grading System"). Grades issued must represent a full range of student performance: A = excellent; B = above average; C = average; D = below average; F = failure.

In written assignments for English 117A, this scale is based on the following criteria:

A [90-92=A minus, 93-96=A, 97-100=A plus] = Excellent: The "A" essay is articulate and well developed with fluid transitions and a clear and persuasive use of evidence, which is drawn from the literary text itself, lecture materials (when appropriate), and research materials. An "A" essay contains a fresh insight that teaches the reader something new about the subject matter.

B [80-82=B minus, 83-86=B, 87-89=B plus] Above average: The "B" essay demonstrates a good understanding of its subject, a clear and persuasive use of evidence, a certain level of ease of expression, and solid organization. However, it usually lacks the level of originality and creativity that characterizes the insight found in an "A" essay.

C [70-72=C minus, 73-76=C, 77-79=C plus] = Average: The "C" essay makes a good attempt at all the assignment's requirements. It has a reasonable understanding of its subject matter but its ideas are frequently simplistic or over-generalized. The writing style is also more bland and repetitive than the style shown by "A" and "B" essays and it often contains flaws in grammar, punctuation, spelling and/or word choice. It may also use textual evidence out of context.

D [60-62=D minus, 63-66=D, 67-69=D plus] = Below average: The "D" essay is poorly organized and generally unclear. It has inappropriate or inadequate examples, is noticeably superficial or simplistic, and/or contains some serious mechanical and grammatical problems. A "D" essay may also reveal some misunderstanding of the assignment requirements.

F [59 or below] = Failure: An "F" essay has not addressed the requirements of the assignment and is unacceptable work in terms of both form and content.

Note: Instead of giving weight to individual assignments, I have opted to assign credit to the Canvas modules in which each major assignment is housed. This design choice gives you the opportunity to receive credit for all of the prep work that goes into each writing assignment. In other words, as a writing teacher, I value the writing process rather than solely the final product, so I have designed the assessment practices of this course to reflect that.
Course Policies

Make Time for the Work

University policy requires that the following language be included in all syllabi:

“Success in this course is based on the expectation that students will spend, for each unit of credit, a minimum of 45 hours over the length of the course (normally three hours per unit per week) for instruction, preparation/studying, or course related activities, including but not limited to internships, labs, and clinical practica. Other course structures will have equivalent workload expectations as described in the syllabus.”

Come to Office Hours

Every Thursday from 10:00 – 11:00 am PST and by appointment
Zoom link: https://sjsu.zoom.us/j/97227963754

Each week, I hold office hours on Zoom which means that I sit at my computer ready and waiting to talk with you about what you need, what you want to accomplish, and how I can help you do that. You can either drop on by the Zoom link at any time or email me to make an appointment! I have enabled the “waiting room” feature on Zoom so when you stop by you will be automatically admitted to a waiting room space in the order in which you logged in.

Late Work

Because I understand that life happens, I will accept late work up to 5 days past the deadline, but I will deduct 5% (or 1 point for assignments that are out of 10) for each day that the work is late (including weekends). If you have an exceptional circumstance that prevents you from submitting work for a period of time, please let me know. I am happy to support you in your efforts to do the work and pass the course.

Avoid Plagiarism by Asking Questions

Plagiarism is when you take someone else’s words or ideas and pass them off as your own. While plagiarism is wrong, asking about it is not! If you are not sure if something counts as plagiarism or not, go ahead and ask me, either in class, individually before or after class, or via email.

After teaching for many years, it is pretty obvious to me when a writer forgets to cite a source or does not understand how to cite a source correctly. It also obvious when a writer blatantly inserts someone else’s language or ideas into their own writing. If I find a case of plagiarism that is not the result of misunderstanding or incorrect citation, I am required to refer you to the university for disciplinary action.

Our Class Atmosphere

Our classroom is a learning environment where everyone’s right to explore ideas needs to be respected. There is nothing wrong with disagreement and debate. In fact, saying that you disagree with someone and why you do is crucial for really doing the work of critically thinking. What is wrong is being disrespectful to anyone in our class or actively suppressing a colleague’s ability to think, collaborate, and write. We will be practicing how to engage with each other with mutual respect.

A Zoom environment poses interesting challenges. We will discuss as a class how we prefer to interact on Zoom. Once we write a class policy, I will post it to our course Canvas site.
University Policies

Add/Drop Policy

Students are responsible for understanding the policies and procedures about add/drop, grade forgiveness, etc. Add/drop deadlines can be found on the current academic year calendars document on the Academic Calendars webpage. Students should be aware of the current deadlines and penalties for dropping classes (Late Drop Information).

Information about the latest changes and news is available at the Advising Hub.

Campus Policy in Compliance with the American Disabilities Act

If you need course adaptations or accommodations because of a disability, or if you need to make special arrangements in case the building must be evacuated, please make an appointment with me as soon as possible, or see me during office hours. Presidential Directive 97-03 requires that students with disabilities requesting accommodations must register with the Accessible Education Center (AEC) to establish a record of their disability.
