Course Description

This 4-unit course surveys China's revolutions and ongoing modernization. It examines Chinese history from 1800 to the present focusing on political, economic, and social changes. It looks into the geography and cultural heritage of China, its encounters with the Western powers, the efforts and the failures of modernization by reforms, the rise of Communist revolution, and dramatic transformations in politics, economy, and culture after 1949. You will be presented with a wide range of primary sources, visual materials, and documentary films.

Course Learning Outcomes (CLO)

Upon successful completion of this course, students will be able to:

CLO1: Describe and explain the major events and themes in Chinese history since 1800. Assessed by essay questions on exams.

CLO2: Describe and explain the concept of “modern” and China’s interactions with the world. Assessed by long essay questions on the final exam, response paper and essay.

CLO3: Summarize and critically analyze historical documents/novels/visual materials. Assessed by the presentations and response paper.

CLO4: Present their findings to the classmates, respond to critiques, and learn to constructively critique the work of other classmates. Assessed by presentations and class discussion.

CLO5: Write historical essays with a strong thesis and clear evidence of historical thinking. Assessed by essay questions on exams, response paper, essay proposal and essay writing.

Required Texts/Readings

Textbooks

Jonathan D. Spence, The Search for Modern China (Third Edition)

Jung Chang, Wild Swan: Three Daughters of China. Any Edition.

Other Readings

Additional documents and articles will be posted on the Canvas site, as indicated by * in the syllabus. Doing the reading assigned for each class before coming to class is necessary to benefit from what we do in class. The tentative course schedule indicates details on the readings and the dates by which reading assignments must be completed.

Library Liaison

The History Department Library Liaison is Nyle Monday (nyle.monday@sjsu.edu). Contact him for help with any library assignments in your History classes. His telephone number is (408) 808-2041.

Course Requirements and Assignments

Success in this course is based on the expectation that students will spend, for each unit of credit, a minimum of 45 hours over the length of the course (normally three hours per unit per week) for instruction, preparation/studying, or course related activities, including but not limited to internships, labs, and clinical practica. Other course structures will have equivalent workload expectations as described in the syllabus.

Final Examination or Evaluation

Exams. Two mid-term exam and one final exam.

Reading Response Paper. You need to write one response paper for The True Story of Ah Q, discussing what kinds of Chinese characters Ah Q represented. Three pages.

Essay Proposal. Write a brief narrative describing your topic and how you find materials relevant to that topic. You are strongly encouraged to consult with the instructor during office hours on your essay proposal.

Final Essay. This essay is to illuminate aspects of life in China since 1800 (possible choices include social relations, communism, gender, wars...), building upon your proposal. It should include an introduction; historical narrative and analysis supporting your thesis; a conclusion; and a source bibliography. Six pages.

Oral Presentation. Each student is also required to make a 10-minute in-class presentation on most recent news on China. In reporting the news, the presenter should synthesize news stories. If necessary the presenter should also provide some background information to help the class understand the story better. After each presentation there will be a short period in which the presenter responds to questions or comments from the audience.

All written assignments, with the exception of exams, must be typed, double-spaced, in 12-point Times New Roman font (or an equivalent font), and have one-inch margins. Written assignments will be graded on both content and composition.
