

Greetings!

The Cleantech Open is a not-for-profit organization dedicated to finding, funding, and fostering the brightest cleantech startups on the planet. More than 150 of the world's brightest entrepreneurs participate in our mentoring, education, and support programs that help bring their innovative technologies to market and culminate in our annual conference, The Global Forum.

The 2013 Cleantech Open Global Forum is on November 19th, 20th, and 21st at the San Jose Convention Center. This conference showcases 150 of the year's biggest game changing technologies in the fields of energy, chemical & advance materials, information & communications, transportation, and more. You'll also be able to learn from experts like investor Guy Kawasaki and Governor Bill Ritter.

This event is a must-see for anyone interested in new technologies, new startups, or new trends in the industry. Join us as we celebrate and showcase our ambitious entrepreneurs and innovators of bold sustainability technologies from around the world.

We are looking for some amazing volunteers to help us run this prestigious event, our largest of the year, and would like to invite you to join the team.

The Cleantech Open 2013 Global Forum features limitless networking, dynamic speaker sessions, inspiration, and a great sense that you are contributing to something big.

We are looking for volunteers that can be available for at least 8 hours, can work at least one day or multiple days. Please register by November 8, so that we can develop our roster. If you are interested in volunteering at the Global Forum, please register utilizing this link:

We are requesting Global Forum volunteers join us for a short volunteer training and pizza lunch on Thursday November 14th from 10:30 to 12:30. If you are unable to attend the volunteer training, please plan on arriving 30 minutes early for your shift.

If you have any questions, please contact me at Kpavao@cleantechopen.org.

We hope to work with you!

Sincerely,

Katie Pavao
