

Interdisciplinary Global Leadership & Innovation Minor

Empowering the next generation of Silicon Valley's Global & Innovation Leaders

Will you be a Global Leader?

A global leader is not a leader someone, somewhere else on the planet. A global leader is a leader who has the knowledge, skills and abilities to interact with global participants and solve problems with a global reach. Businesses, non-profits, and government organizations are concerned about having trained global leaders to face future challenges.

Is innovation important for me?

YES! Even if you never create the next breakthrough technological advance, creative problem-solving, leading innovative teams, and developing more effective and efficient processes are valuable skills that require specific leadership skills. Innovation is one of the most reliable economic drivers and organizations are constantly searching for leaders who can facilitate organizational innovations.

Why an Interdisciplinary program?

The most effective global leaders and innovators are those who can cross-functional boundaries in organizations – those with interdisciplinary breadth of knowledge! Working with interdisciplinary teams, and incorporating interdisciplinary theory into your own disciplinary studies is an excellent way to develop the skills that employers are looking for.

Define your Future & Make your Education Your Own!

Interdisciplinary Global Leadership & Innovation Minor Requirements

Bus016 ~ Introduction to Global Leadership & Innovation	3 units
Bus165A ~ Global Leadership Lab	3 units
Two Leadership or Innovation Electives, selected to develop your unique needs	6 units
Bus165B ~ Global Leadership & Innovation Practicum	3 units

For more information contact Dr. Rolanda Pollard: Rolanda.Pollard@sjsu.edu