Asher gives over 150 lectures and workshops per year.

Dr. Linda Prieto grew up working in the agricultural fields of the central San Joaquin Valley in California between the ages of eight and nineteen. It was there she understood first-hand the value of an education and the important role educational opportunities can play in breaking the cycle of poverty.

She holds breadth and depth of experiences in education having taught in the K-12 setting as well as in different institutions of higher education both small and large: public, private, secular, Catholic and Hispanic Serving Institutions.

Dr. Prieto has also worked in student affairs, with for- and non-profits in both the U.S. and Mexico. She is a talented scholar, researcher, and educator and currently serves as The Vice President of Educational Equity Programs at ALearn SVEF in San José, where she focuses on increasing college access and success for students from educationally underrepresented backgrounds.

Dr. Joseph Brown received his Bachelor of Science Degree in Physics from Southwest Texas State University and a Master of Science Degree in Biomedical Engineering from Brown University in 1990.

After working for IBM as a marketing representative, he was admitted to the PhD program in Social Psychology at Stanford University. His graduate work focused on the influence of stereotypes and prejudice on the intellectual identities and performance of women and minorities.

After receiving his doctorate in 2000, he taught at the University of Washington. In January 2003, he returned to Stanford and is now the Assistant Dean for Graduate and Undergraduate Studies and Diversity Programs for the School of Humanities and Sciences.

Puneet Sanghera is an alumna of the NSF-REU RUMBA (Research for Undergraduate students using Molecular Biology Applications) at San José State University where she studied the effects of acute inflammation on spinal cord excitability.

She also attended the NSF-REU Integrative Biology Program at UC Berkeley, where she studied the effects of repetitive mild traumatic brain injury. She is a recipient of the CSUPERB-Howell fellowship focusing on women's health research and the University of the Provost Undergraduate Research Grant. She served on the board of Biology Student Association, Global Medical Brigades, the Beta Upsilon chapter of Alpha Omega Epsilon, and was accepted to the Epsilon Alpha chapter of Tri Beta Biological Honors Society.
