Students need to schedule at least 120 hours of home study, appropriately distributed over the course, in addition to regular class attendance. This means homework of 7 to 10 hours per week. If you can't devote this much time to study over the next several months, please drop the course this semester and take it during a semester when you have more time. We want you to complete the course and graduate!!!

Required Texts/Readings

Online resources

This course will use San Jose State's online learning management system Canvas. All students must access Canvas for key readings and other assignments. If you are not registered for the course or for other reason do not yet have access, basic course info and possibly some early assignments are to be available on:

<http://www.sjsu.edu/people/robert.wood/courses/index.html> Click the "Courses" link.

Textbook

The principal text is a McGraw Hill Create ebook containing theory and cases by Frank Rothaermel, mostly from his text Strategic Management: Concepts and Cases. The ebook's ISBN number is 9781309059234. Order the text by going to <https://create.mheducation.com/shop/> and searching for the ISBN number.

Other Required Readings

Two Harvard Business School cases accessible through this link:

Ed Catmull, Creativity Inc., Random House, ISBN 978-0-8129-9301-1.

Readings that appear on Canvas including Notes on topics to be covered in class.

It is essential to prepare cases as well as text readings and notes carefully for discussion in class. Doing this well is crucial to the class participation grade. It is not, however, necessary to memorize facts from the cases for tests.

Other materials RECOMMENDED

- For our study of technology strategy, students are asked to experiment with virtual reality and augmented reality products. It is helpful, but not required, if students have a smartphone compatible with virtual reality and augmented reality products. (Those who do not have a compatible smartphone can use a product from the instructor or other members of the class.) Those who own compatible smartphones may consider a Google Cardboard viewer. Most iOS and Android smartphones made within the last few years are compatible. The standard viewer from Google is $15 at https://store.google.com/product/google_cardboard?utm_source=en-ha-na-us-sem&utm_medium=desktop&utm_content=plas&utm_campaign=Cardboard&gl=us&gclid=CjwKEAjuqpK8BRD7ua-U0orrgkESJADIN3YBYEEgWj3MANj86YU1-u2nrdPcydWOL6AiJaOfbJ08ARoCJj_w_wcB .
But a cheaper version such as this available here on eBay in January would also be fine: http://www.ebay.com/itm/like/152119312120?lpid=82&chn=ps&ul_noapp=true .
- Students should regularly read one or two supplementary periodicals covering business. The Wall Street Journal, New York Times, Financial Times, Fortune, Forbes, or Bloomberg Business Week are all helpful. Successful business people have in-depth knowledge of their particular field and appreciation for other businesses and societal issues. Reading well-written articles also improves your command of the English language. (Discounted student subscriptions to some publications are available.)
- Students should regularly use a college-level dictionary and/or on-line sources such as dictionary.com to look up words whose meanings or usage they are unsure of.
- Many students find helpful a grammar guide such as The Bedford Handbook (Bedford/St. Martin's).
- The Martin Luther King Jr. has an excellent collection of on-line databases available at <http://libguides.sjsu.edu/az.php>. These databases include enormous amounts of highly relevant information unavailable through search engines such as Google. If you have not already done so, visit the library and establish a Personal Identification Number (PIN) so you can access these databases from off campus. The library has created an on-line course on using databases to find company information. This may be helpful for students in this Business 189: <http://libguides.sjsu.edu/content.php?pid=331467&sid=3072230>

Students may also find it helpful to learn about databases from other students or from the instructor. When seeking information for the strategic management project, major analyses that appear in such magazines as Fortune, Forbes, and Bloomberg BusinessWeek may be particularly helpful. These publications can be searched using the “Journal Titles” link on the library’s home page.

The Strategic Project will require that you tell where you got your information, using Modern Language Association or American Psychological Association style. You will probably need to refer to either the MLA style manual itself (Modern Language Association. MLA Handbook for Writers of Research Papers. 6th ed. New York. 2009 – available at the Spartan bookstore) or a web page that summarizes the principles of the manual. A good MLA style web page is <http://owl.english.purdue.edu/owl/resource/747/01>.

Course Requirements and Assignments

a. Preparation for Class

The course schedule lists study questions for cases and some major class discussions. Students may work individually or in groups to develop answers to these questions. The course is a seminar, and will use the case method to combine theory and application. Cases will require considerable preparation, analysis and class participation. Therefore, both preparation and class attendance are important. Unless you have specifically requested some other method of class participation, you may be cold-called during class to discuss aspects of the case reading. Class participation is an important part of the grade. To obtain a grade of C or better in class participation, students must contribute actively to the class.¹

b. Project

The Strategic Project requires students to work in a group, analyzing a company, developing possible alternative strategies, and making recommendations as a consultant would. The project grade is 40% group, 60% individual. However,

c. Quizzes

There will be a major quiz in the fifth week of class and three or more unannounced quizzes. Unannounced quizzes maybe held on the readings at any time. (Material in readings labeled “ok to skim” will not be in the quizzes.) Quizzes will be mostly objective questions.

d. Exams

There will be a midterm exam and a final exercise. These will include both objective and essay questions.

See separate course calendar and postings on Canvas for specific assignments and due dates.

¹ A few students find speaking in class to be very difficult. If you are that kind of student, it is possible to participate in class by sending analytical emails to the professor discussing the study questions that appear in the syllabus. The objective, whether you speak in class or participate by email, is to demonstrate the abilities that would make you a valuable participant in strategic discussions within a real company.

Penalties for late or missed work: Late work receives severe penalties, typically two half grade steps per week of lateness (e.g., a B paper turned in a week late is likely to receive a C+; two weeks late it will receive a C-). If you need extra time on a major assignment, consult with the instructor early. In any case, it is still much better to turn in work late than not to turn it in at all.

Note that “All students have the right, within a reasonable time, to know their academic scores, to review their grade-dependent work, and to be provided with explanations for the determination of their course grades.” See University Policy F13-1 at <http://www.sjsu.edu/senate/docs/F13-1.pdf> for more details.
