Philosophy/Religious Studies 109: Philosophy of Religion
Professor J. Giddings

FALL 2018: Tuesdays/Thursdays 1030-1145

This course covers traditional arguments in philosophy of religion and current theories and methods such as: environmentalism in Buddhism, Islam; Universalism; consecration magic in Chinese religion; phenomenology of visionary experience; the idea of God in feminist philosophy, and more.

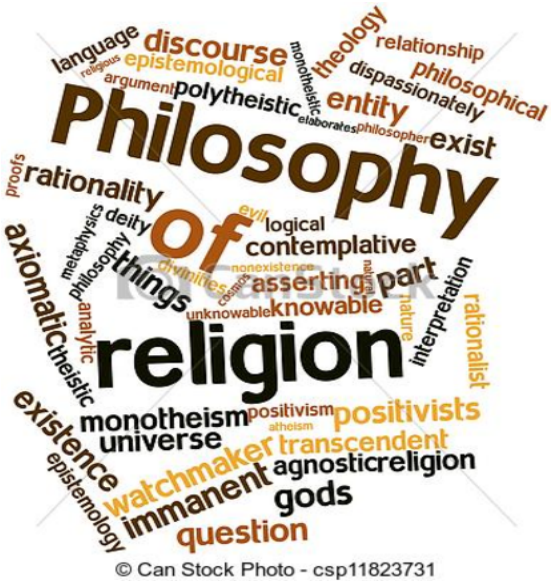
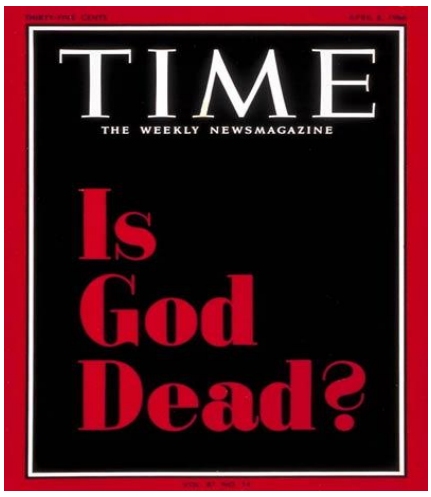
Problems in radical philosophies such as: God is dead (theothanatology); atheism, anti-theism, science, al-Farabi and God's knowledge; Vattimo and Caputo philosophies; and networked theology.




This course uses global philosophy of religion considerations.
