Course Format

This class is a mix of lecture, facilitated discussion, and other activities during class hours. There is a Canvas page for the class, accessible by students registered for this class at <http://sjsu.instructure.com>. Please use your SJSUOne ID for login. The professor will use it to post reserve readings, checking your essays for source use, and as an archive for class handouts. This syllabus is subject to change at the professor's discretion. Due to the professor's research conference schedule, one or more of the class meetings may occur via Zoom. Students need to verify their Zoom accounts and accessibility prior to the second meeting for class.

Course Description

This class is an introductory survey of major topics in international relations, including global, national, and individual causes of war and peace, international cooperation, north-south relations, and political economy. Theory of international relations will encompass the first part of the class, with concentration on specific issues in the second half. Students are not required to have any experience in international relations when taking this course, so we will begin with the basics and then apply them to real-world issues.

Course Goals

Department of Political Science Learning Outcomes

The Political Science Department has the following objectives for its students:

- 1) Breadth: Students should possess a broad knowledge of the theory and methods of the various branches of the discipline.
- 2) Application: Students should be able to apply a variety of techniques to identify, understand,

- and analyze domestic and international political issues and organizations.
- 3) Disciplinary methods: Students should be able to formulate research questions, engage in systematic literature searches using primary and secondary sources, have competence systematic data gathering using library sources, government documents, and data available through electronic sources, should be able to evaluate research studies, and should be able to critically analyze and interpret influential political texts.
 - 4) Communication Skills: Students should master basic competencies in oral and written communication skills and be able to apply these skills in the context of political science. This means communicating effectively about politics and/or public administration, public policy, and law.
 - 5) Citizenship: Students should acquire an understanding of the role of the citizen in local, state, national, and global contexts and appreciate the importance of lifelong participation in political processes.

GE Learning Outcomes (GELO)

This is a D3 (Social issues) course. Upon successful completion of this course, students will be able to apply multidisciplinary material to a topic relevant to policy and social action at the local, national, and/or international levels. Specifically, students will be able to:

1. place contemporary developments of international policy and social actions in cultural, historical, environmental, and spatial contexts;
2. identify the dynamics of ethnic, cultural, gender/sexual, age--based, class, regional, national, transnational, and global identities and the similarities, differences, linkages, and interactions between them;
3. evaluate social science information, draw on different points of view, and formulate applications appropriate to contemporary international policy and social actions;
4. apply multidisciplinary material to a topic relevant to policy and social action at the local, national, and/or international levels.

Course Learning Outcomes (CLO)

Upon successful completion of this course, students will be able to:

1. Explain and use the paradigms/theories of realism, liberalism, constructivism and Marxism/radicalism to explain historical and contemporary international political behavior.
2. Name and describe the behavior of actors in international politics, including individuals, states and international organizations.
3. Provide information about major international political issues such as international political economy, the historical and contemporary nature of war, the rise of the issue of human rights and how it affected international politics, and global issues such as immigration, transnational environmental problems and transnational crime.

To achieve these objectives there is a writing requirement of at least 1500 words over the course of the semester in terms of exams and papers. The course will cover the first two requirements by considering historical and contemporary issues in international politics, studying first the theories of explanation of politics and actors in politics, writing a book/movie review, then testing for student knowledge in these areas over two exams. The course will cover the third and fourth requirements by having students analyze specific issues surrounding the causes of war and terrorism, the nature of human rights and its effects on politics, the international political economic system and transnational issues such as the environment, world health, and crime. Readings for this section will include articles from political science but also other research disciplines. To assess the writing requirement, students will write essays on these issues and must complete two out of three offered essay topics to fulfill this outcome. The writing over the course of this semester (book/movie review, essays and the final exam) will result in writing that totals at least 3000 words.

Required Texts/Readings

Textbook

There is one required textbook for the course, currently available in Spartan Bookstore:
Karen A. Mingst and Ivan M. Arreguin-Toft's Essentials of International Relations, 7th edition (NY: W. W. Norton, 2016; ISBN: 978-0-393-28340-2).

Other Readings

Other readings for this class are electronic. The professor will provide information about various required readings and how to access them. They will be accessible either as electronic books on the King Library webpage, via the Canvas page under "Files," or as links sent out by email. For the Canvas files, click on "Files," look for the "Reserves" tab and click on this, and you should see a list of files with individual excerpts/articles for you to access. You may read these sources online, or print for your individual use. If there are any accessibility issues with regards to these readings, please contact the instructor about the problem ASAP so we can resolve the issue.

All readings (text and additional) are required unless indicated in the Schedule. Please complete the reading per the assigned dates to ensure preparation for participation in lectures, class discussion, and for good performance on exams and papers.

Course Requirements and Assignments

SJSU classes are designed such that in order to be successful, it is expected that students will spend a minimum of forty-five hours for each unit of credit (normally three hours per unit per week), including preparing for class, participating in course activities, completing assignments, and so on. More details about student workload can be found in University Policy S12-3 at <http://www.sjsu.edu/senate/docs/S12-3.pdf>.

Assessment for this course will consist of class discussion, two in-class exams, two out of three essays and an in-class final essay examination, valued as follows:

Participation/Contribution to Learning	15 percent
Mid-Term Exam	20 percent
Essay & Book/Film Review	30 percent
Debate Participation	15 percent
Final Exam	20 percent
Total	100 percent

Participation/Contribution to Learning: Students will participate via in-class and online discussions and other in-class activities over the course of the semester. Measurement of contribution to class learning will be observance of students' application of course theories, frameworks, and approaches to discussing topics related to International Relations. Such contributions should be critical, yet respectful of other's opinion, based on factual analysis, and not superficially contrived. While attendance is not the primary method of measuring participation, if students are not attending class, they will not be participating. Activities may be verified through writing at the start or end of the class session, or through spontaneous quizzes and iClicker participation events. Group activities, when they occur, may include some form of verification for student participation. Part of the grade for this item will involve student participation in a debate at the end of the course. Part of the students' participation grade will include the completion of the library plagiarism tutorial.

All students must complete the Plagiarism Tutorial on the library's website at <http://tutorials.sjlibrary.org/tutorial/plagiarism/index.htm>. Through this activity you will learn the SJSU rules regarding the use of quotations, paraphrases and citations. You will be expected to know this material and apply it throughout the rest of the class. When you have finished, you will receive a grade from the library's automated system. Print the screen showing your grade in pdf format. Then submit the pdf file on Canvas by the due date. All students must pass the tutorial with a grade of 80 or better, or re-take it.

Mid-term Exam: There will be mid-term exam, composed of True/False, multiple choice, and short essay questions. The exam will be offered mid-way in the term (see Schedule for dates of sections and the exams). This mid-term exam will be a take home type-written exam that students will submit online. The purpose of the exam is to assess students' grasp of the basic international relations theories prior to their ability to use the theories to critically assess international political events. The exam will be made available the day of the exam. While the exam is open-book and open-note, students may not rely on other students for answers. Additionally, please note that while the exam is open, the time limitation will make prior preparation essential.

Students must plan to take the tests as scheduled in the syllabus. No tests will be given before the scheduled date for any reason. Make-ups will only be given for verifiable emergencies, and the time for the makeup will be set by the instructor within a week of the scheduled date. If you miss an exam, you have one week to make it up; otherwise, it will be counted as a zero in the final grade calculation.

Essay: There are four essay topics listed in the schedule, one at the end of each of the first four sub-sections under Section III. Students are required to select one of these topics and to complete an essay of 750-1000 words (approximately 3-4 pages double-spaced and with 1" margins in 12-point font). Please note that each essay must be completed by the last in-class meeting date at midnight to receive full potential credit. Essays submitted after the due date will be assessed a one letter grade per day penalty. Students must complete one out of four essay topics, but it is their choice which ones to complete. My suggestion is to choose the topics and times that work best for you, but keep in mind that the end of the semester tends to be hectic. The professor will provide feedback on draft version, but only during scheduled office hours or other mutually agreed meeting time.

See the Policy on Written Work below for details on turning in and completing essays in the class. There is also a longer explanation of the essay assignment, with expectations for content and writing, appended to this syllabus. Essays will be submitted on line in Canvas.

Book/Film Review: The purpose of the Book/Film review is to allow the student to demonstrate competency in applying theoretical thinking to contemporary popular topics relating to international relations. The style, format, and length of a book review will follow the instructor guidelines for book reviews as outlined by the journal International Affairs at https://academic.oup.com/ia/pages/Author_Guidelines & <https://academic.oup.com/DocumentLibrary/IAFFAI/House%20Style%20May%202016.pdf>

Students can find an excellent guideline for writing a film review at the following website: <http://cinemathequepress.com>.

The book review/film review should not exceed 500 words. Book and film titles must be approved by the professor before beginning. Title must be approved prior to Spring Break. The following websites offer potential titles:

<http://www.imdb.com/list/ls031782705/>

<https://mubi.com/lists/must-watch-films-for-international-relations-students>

Students will select a movie or book and review it through the lens of one of the theories discussed in class. A rubric for the review will be provided when the topic is selected by the students.

Debate Participation:

Students will form teams 4 Topic teams of 10-12 students, and further divide into 2 sub theory teams composed of 5-6 students. Students Topic Teams will select a contemporary or historical international event to debate using theories discussed in class. Once teams select an event, sub theory teams will select two opposing theories to explain the cause of the event. Teams will conduct research and prepare to debate their assigned topic on their assigned date at the end of the course. The purpose of the debate is to allow the students to demonstrate competency in formulating critical and reasoned responses to global events, engaging in systematic literature searches using primary and secondary sources, systematically gather data using library sources, government documents, and data available through electronic sources, evaluate research studies, and to critically analyze and interpret influential international events and verbally defend an explanation of the event through the use of one of the theories discussed in class.

Final Exam: The final exam is scheduled for Tuesday, May 22nd at 1215-1430. No final will be given out ahead of this date or time; please schedule your plans accordingly. Makeups will occur on the official makeup day (May 23) for students with a verifiable emergency, at a time to be set by the instructor after the student notifies him.

This test will be issued in-class, Students are required to write an essay of 2-3 pages, on a topic chosen from a list of topic questions given in class before the exam. This exam is comprehensive for the class, although topics may definitely include the final transnational issues we discuss in class. I will give you a list of questions before the test, and then select two from the list for you to complete. Students may use books, notes, or other sources to provide their answers. They may not use other classmates as a resource. Students will be expected to adhere to collegiate level plagiarism rules and norms. Exams will be submitted online before the end of the Final exam time limit.

Grading Information

This course is based upon a point system, with percentage of points earned on assignments and exams corresponding to the following grades: 97-100% is an A+, 93-96% is an A, 90-92% is an A-, 87-89% is a B+, 83-86% is a B, 80-82% is a B-, 79-77% is a C+, 78-73% is a C, 72-70% is a C, 69% - 67% is a D+, 66% - 64% is a D, 63% - 60% is a D-, below 60% is an F. Keep track of your points over the course of the semester as noted above, and you should have an idea how you stand in the class.

Note that “All students have the right, within a reasonable time, to know their academic scores, to review their grade-dependent work, and to be provided with explanations for the determination of their course grades.” See University Policy F13-1 at <http://www.sjsu.edu/senate/docs/F13-1.pdf> for more details. That said, please note that grades will may not be posted accurately on Canvas in this course; if you need information on class standing, please see me in office hours so we can access your scores and I can give you an accurate assessment of your progress.

Policy on Submitting Written Work in this Course

In order to make sure all students complete their work under equal and fair conditions and to facilitate turnaround on grading, the following policy applies to submitting written work (essays written outside of class) for this course:

- 1) For full credit, students must submit each essay by the day designated in the syllabus, barring an emergency that is verifiable in writing. Other situations where a student may not be able to turn in an assignment on time require contacting the instructor before or on the date of submission to get an extension. Extensions will be granted at the instructor's discretion. The decision to grant an extension will be based on the severity of the reason for the request such as medical emergencies or death of a next of kin family member (defined as a parent or sibling, or member of the family who had primary responsibility in raising you).

- 2) All written assignments must be submitted on via the Canvas page under "Assignments" the day they are due to qualify for full credit. No assignments may be submitted via e-mail for any reason. Late papers will lose the equivalent of one letter grade per day late, barring an excused emergency or an extension granted by the instructor.
- 3) All essay and book/film review assignments must also be uploaded via the Canvas page under "Assignments" in order to qualify for credit, as this will check the paper for source use via Turnitin. If the written assignment is not submitted to the Canvas page, it is not considered "turned in." Uploads are due by 11:59 p.m. on the due date for the paper. Late uploads are possible, but papers will not be graded until the upload occurs.
- 4) If a student must turn in a hard copy late due to an emergency, the student should submit the work as soon as possible and provide the written verification of the emergency with the hard copy, to restore any lost grade points as well as have the work graded.
- 5) The last day for submission of any late work due to an emergency or extension is the last actual lecture day of the session (May 10th). It is also the last day that points can be corrected on late work if an emergency is verified. After this point, the only work that will be accepted for grading from students is the final exam.
- 6) Barring adjustments to grade points on late work because of an emergency, all grades on written work are final.
- 7) While students may discuss paper topics and how to approach questions with each other, each student's paper must be their own work – collaboration is not permitted in this course.
- 8) Students are expected to use sources appropriately as well in writing, giving proper attribution where necessary. Failure to comply with either of these rules risks committing plagiarism.

Students at the college level are expected to submit written work that fits the grammatical, stylistic and citation expectations for college-level work in English. APA or MLA will be the standard for this class. All written assignments in this course are therefore graded in two ways: both in terms of content (information in terms of logic, quality of evidence, etc.) and in terms of writing. If you are at all uncomfortable with writing at the college level, you need to take steps to rectify this. The instructor is willing to preview rough drafts of work in office hours before assignments are due to provide feedback. You may also want to see the instructor after assignments are handed back if comments indicate that there are specific errors in argument or writing.

You may not rewrite assignments for additional credit or regrades in this course. At this level of academic work, you should be prepared to submit work that is ready for scrutiny in your first effort.

Classroom Protocol

Student participation in this class is aided by regular and punctual attendance, with students prepared to talk and having read the material beforehand. While many of the sections in the Schedule cover multiple days, please keep in mind that putting off preparation for class may hurt your understanding and/or performance.

Minimizing disruption during class, to help your fellow students learn, is a concern in this class. If you are late, please enter quietly and find a seat. Leaving early is also fine if you clear it with the instructor first.

Please turn phones and any electronic features on devices not needed for taking notes off for the duration of class. Texting is strongly discouraged, both as a disruption and because it affects students' ability to absorb material.

While this is essentially an introductory theory and issues course in International Politics, we may be touching on some sensitive issues over the course of the semester – and it is not always clear what could be sensitive to other people, given our diverse backgrounds. For that reason, students should refrain from language, particularly generalizations or characterizations of individuals or groups based on race, religion, socioeconomic background, etc. This also applies to discussions in class: if you have problems with a student's points, challenge the points, not the student. If you are uncomfortable with a topic or how discussion has gone in class, you may want to contact me outside of class or in office hours.

Notes in class may be taken by hand or on electronic devices such as laptops. But while I may use PowerPoint slides and other audiovisual materials for notes in class, please note that these will not be uploaded to Canvas. It is the responsibility of students to take notes for their own use. If you are absent on a particular class day, you may get notes from a colleague or see me in office hours to go over what you missed.

University Policies

Per University Policy S16-9, university-wide policy information relevant to all courses, such as academic integrity, accommodations, etc. will be available on Office of Graduate and Undergraduate Programs' Syllabus Information web page at <http://www.sjsu.edu/gup/syllabusinfo/>". Please peruse these policies at the link, as they apply to issues such as accommodations for students with learning or other challenges, religious holidays, and what is considered cheating or plagiarism.

Workload and Credit Hour Requirements

Success in this course is based on the expectation that students will spend, for each unit of credit, a minimum of 45 hours over the length of the course (normally 3 hours per unit per week with 1 of the hours used for lecture) for instruction or preparation/studying or course related activities including but not limited to internships, labs, clinical practica. Other course structures will have equivalent workload expectations as described in the syllabus.

Disclaimer

All information in this syllabus, including due dates for evaluation instruments such as exams or papers may be subject to change with fair notice by the instructor, the Department of Political Science or San Jose State University.

Essays – Format and Details

Format and Content for Essays

In the second half of the class, students will work with specific issues in international politics such as war, human rights, and international political economy. At the end of each of these issue sections is a paper topic that concentrates on a facet of the issue. As part of the writing requirement and GE requirements for the course, students must select two of these three paper topics and write an essay of approximately 3-4 pages each (750-1000 words, excluding the bibliography) answering each topic question. Essays should be typewritten, double-spaced and in 12-point font with 1" margins and page numbers. There is a scheduled deadline for each of these topics; you may complete the essay for that topic any time before the due date, but after the due date, an essay on that topic will not qualify for full credit in grading.¹ All essays must be submitted to the Canvas page online by 11:59 p.m. on the due date.² No essays may be e-mailed to the instructor for credit. Each essay is worth 60 points.

The topic question for each essay requires both a show of knowledge on the part of the student as well as taking a particular position on an issue. You should plan to make an argument that answers the question, using what you have learned in the class via lecture and the readings. Part of the essay grade depends upon use of class materials in your answers; you are not required to do outside research for these essays, although you may do so for additional information. An essay that does not use class materials at all (lecture, text or articles/excerpts) may face a grade deduction. However, mere “information dumping,” where you give information from a source but do not use it in a way that shows understanding, will receive a lower grade than an essay that has less information but clearly shows that the writer can understand and apply knowledge.

All materials used in your essay, including lecture or discussion notes, are considered sources of material, and must be cited when used as quotes or sources of information.

All essays will receive grades based upon a point system, with 60 points total possible. 40 of these points will be for content:

- Answering all parts of a question;
- Making an argument when your opinion is required;
- Showing an understanding of the concepts needed to answer the question;
- Use of class materials to inform your answers.

Twenty points of the essay will be for grammar and citations, as outlined below.

Grammar and Citations in Essays

To fulfill the writing requirements of this course, students are expected to perform written work and be evaluated on their ability to write. This means that part of your essay grade will depend upon grammar and citations as well as content. You will have two essays this semester, which gives you a chance to improve your writing over time and become comfortable with habits such as citation that will help you in later courses.

Essays that show a minimum of grammatical errors and good use of citations when class materials are used will receive twenty points. Common grammar errors that could receive deductions include:

- Spelling (do not just rely on spell check, as an incorrect word can still be correctly spelled);
- Verb tense and agreement;

¹ My suggestion is to wait until we get into the sections in class and discuss the background of the topics before you write. The due date for each paper should be a week after we finish the section in class.

² Uploads are for source checking purposes only. They are not substitutes for hard copies of the paper, nor do they “stop the clock” on paper deadlines. Please turn in the paper in class.

- Word choice;
- Run-on or fragment sentences;
- Run-on paragraphs (multiple topics in a paragraph).

Citations must also be given for any ideas or information that is not your own. I recommend either the APA or Chicago/Turabian styles for citation in this class, although MLA or other methods may be used. Citations can either be as footnotes or as endnotes, although you may prefer in-text. Examples:

- For information from lecture: In-text would be (Lira, Lecture, Date).
- For the textbook: In-text would be (Mingst and Arreguin-Toft 2016, Page #).
- For other class sources: In-text would be (Author(s), Date, Page #).

There are writing manuals online that can help with citation formats; see the King Library website (<http://libguides.sjsu.edu/writeandcite>).

Direct quotes as well as paraphrased information must be cited in your work. Quotes that are more than one sentence should be indented as a block, single-spaced and cited. Failure to properly cite will result in a grade deduction. If you are confused over whether to cite or not, the safest course is to do so. If you are concerned about when and where to cite, I suggest either seeing me in office hours or taking the Plagiarism tutorial through the King Library site (<http://tutorials.sjlibrary.org/tutorial/plagiarism/index.htm>).

One last point on citations: a common error students make, which would be reflected in the content portion of an essay, is to fill an essay with quoted information. This is a problem for two reasons. First, it shows that a student is good at locating information, but that she may not understand it. Second, a good writer should be able to rephrase or paraphrase information and present it in an essay. Unless the exact language of the quote is important, you should not just quote. Essays that show this problem will receive a lower grade.

Turnitin (via Canvas) will be used in this course primarily to evaluate your ability to utilize sources well and cite properly. However, if there are clear similarities between your essay and that of other students that indicates collaboration and/or lack of original writing, the instructor will grade accordingly and may consider possible academic penalties. There is a clear difference between blatant and inadvertent plagiarism, but ignorance of the rules of citation is ultimately no excuse. Please familiarize yourself with proper source use.
