Description
This course focuses on the examination and status of Asian Pacific Islander Desi Americans (APIDA) in the U.S. today. The course explores prejudice and racism in structural forces and institutions of media, education, employment, and politics. Students will compare, examine, and complicate the experiences and existing narratives of Asian Americans. This course focuses on three themes: 1. How immigration shapes the concerns of Asian Americans today; 2. How Asian Americans both influence and are influenced by race relations in U.S. society; and 3. How Asian Americans are affected by growing inequality in America. This course reviews different theories of race relations used to study Asian Americans. This course concludes with a study of global trends in migration and inequality, social and political movements, and cultural productions analyses.

Course Learning Outcomes

Student Course Assessment
Participation/Discussion Posts/Pop Quizzes 10%
Journals & Facilitation 20%
Essay 20%
Field Assignment 20%
Final Group Creative Project 30%

Course Requirements & Assignments
Participation and Discussion Posts 10%
Four discussion posts are required and posted on Canvas. Discussion posts will be assessed by completing the following:

1. Provide one quote from an assigned reading (include author and page number) and then discuss its significance to the topic and/or module.

2. A set of reflection questions will be offered to seed dialogue and discussion about the topic and/or module. Students must respond to at least one of these questions.

3. Students must respond thoughtfully to at least one other student’s post.
8 Weekly Journals & 1 Facilitation 20%

Each student will submit a weekly reading journal based on the week’s set of readings, answering the questions below. Weekly journals for each assigned reading set will be due Thursdays on Canvas. If there are multiple readings required, you will only need to submit one journal. Students may choose which 8 weekly journals they want to write on but should keep in mind the weekly Thursday due date.

Students will also sign up to present one of their weekly posts to the classroom and facilitate discussion. One student per assigned reading (class size permitting).

1. The main concept/argument from the assigned reading, defined in your own words. (3 sentences max)

2. “So what?” - The author’s central argument from the assigned reading, or the prominent theme that linked 2 or more readings (about 5 sentences per paragraph). Discuss the takeaway from the pieces and how they are connected. Focus on creating a significant question for the class.

3. Your personal connection to the reading and a class question and/or comment to initiate dialogue with your peers. It should not be a question that receives a yes/no reply.

Essay 20% - History and Autobiography (3-5 pages)

According to sociologist C. Wright Mills, we can discover an intersection between autobiography and history. Each person’s life unfolds within a particular historical period, and an individual can understand their own experience by locating their life within history. Each person’s life is shaped by historic events such as war, immigration, racism, oppression of women, civil unrest, etc. Mills states that this discovery is “in many ways a terrible lesson, in many ways a magnificent one.” For this essay, each student will write an autobiography providing some background on yourself but primarily focusing on how your life intersects with history. Students should use assigned readings and course lectures to supplement their autobiographical essay by focusing on these questions: How does your life intersect with history? Have certain historical events (war, immigration, etc.) shaped your life or influenced your life plans? Why is this understanding both a “terrible” lesson and a “magnificent” one?

Field Assignment 20% - Site Visit or Event (2 pages)

Write a two-page essay about what you’ve learned from either attending a museum (JAM SJ or CAHM museum) or an on-campus event hosted by APIDA or CAPISE. The museums may provide student discounts for admission. Students will need at least one to two hours to see the main exhibits at one of the museums in-person or attending one of the on-campus events in-person or via Zoom. For those who cannot go to any of these, please talk to the instructor for another Field Assignment.
Each student will visit one of the following museums or attend an on-campus event in order to complete their field assignment essay.

Museums
- JAMSJ - Japanese American Museum of San Jose 535 N. Fifth St., San Jose, CA 95112 (408) 294-3138
- CAHM - Chinese American Historical Museum History Park 635 Phelan Avenue San Jose, CA 95112 info@chcp.org

Attend an on-campus event
- Hosted by APIDA - Asian Pacific Islander Desi American Student Success Center
- Hosted by CAPISE - Center for Asian Pacific Islander Student Empowerment

Final Group Project 30%
Each group is expected to present a creative project inspired by course materials. Projects are to be relevant to the APIDA community and incorporate at least three primary sources, along with other relevant research materials appropriate to the students’ topic of choice by analyzing an issue related to Asian American communities. Topics will be determined by the group and approved by the instructor. Projects can be in the form of presentation skits, videos, comic books, game shows, etc. Directions will be available on Canvas by week 4.

Students with learning disabilities or accommodations needed are encouraged to speak to the instructor.

Late Work
Unexcused late work will not be accepted. If an emergency arises, notify me as soon as possible.

Extra Credit
Extra Credit is available for up to 2% of the final course grade. All students will be notified of opportunities and will be given an equal chance to complete extra credit.
