1. Global Entrepreneurship Week
Event-
Monday, November 16th 2009

Topic:	Selling Your Idea in A Global Market
Where:	MLK Library 225/229
Time:	Monday, November 16th, 6:00 pm - 7:30 pm
Speaker:	Mike Sinyard , Founder and CEO - Specialized Bicycles

Guest Speaker's Bio

In 1974, a cycling enthusiast named Mike Sinyard began importing hard-to-find European cycling components because he knew that they were the best parts available. He continued to sell these parts out of a trailer in San Jose, California and developed a network of shops that provided him with valuable input as to what was needed to make customers happy, and what would make their riding experience more enjoyable. Through this insight and his own passion for cycling performance, Mike recognized the need for better tires than those that were being developed in Europe. With this mission, he created the first Specialized touring tire to meet these needs. In this spirit of innovation and enthusiasm, Specialized Bicycle Components was born. For 30 years, Specialized has harnessed this fervor into advancing product development, growing the sports of mountain and road cycling and becoming one of the top manufacturers in the international bicycling industry. Following the introduction of the touring tires, Mike moved on to develop custom components which, in turn, led to the production of entire bikes. Combining the comfort and durability of "cruiser" bikes and the lightweight performance of road bike components, small builders created a new ride known today as the mountain bike. Specialized's 1980 introduction of the StumpJumper, the first production mountain bike, heralded the international boom in off-road biking. Today, these multi-purpose off-road bikes account for over 75% of the cycling market's unit sales. Innovation on the areas of advanced materials, industrial design and marketing continues to keep Specialized ahead of the curve and the competition. Mike Sinyard is the father of three children, Anthony, Julina and Alyssa who he enjoys taking out on the trails and sharing what the spirit of mountain biking has to offer. Sinyard is a cycling fanatic who rides every chance he gets. He enjoys long road and mountain bike rides in the California hills.
