

Kelly H. Myers
Sr. Technical Advisor
Internal Revenue Service
Washington, D.C.

Mr. Kelly H. Myers is a Sr. Technical Advisor in the Examination function of the Internal Revenue Service (Small Business/Self-Employed in Washington, DC). He is responsible for Service-wide support of IRC §469, Passive Activity Losses, and various related issues including, home mortgage interest limitations, investment interest expenses, tax-deferred exchanges under IRC §1031, business use of a personal residence under IRC 280A, and Net Investment Income Tax under IRC §1411. Kelly supports all operating divisions in the IRS, interfaces with Chief Counsel on formal guidance, Field Counsel for litigation support, and engages with numerous external stakeholders such as professional groups and tax software development firms.

Kelly has been with the IRS since 1987 holding various positions including Revenue Agent, Revenue Agent Manager, Subject Matter Expert, Resident Lead Instructor, and Technical Advisor. Kelly has taught extensively within the IRS and served on numerous tasks groups and special projects ranging from RRA98 to various aspects of the Affordable Care Act. Prior to joining the IRS, Kelly worked seven years in public accounting.

Kelly holds a BA in accounting & business administration from Western State College University (Gunnison, CO) and an MBA with an emphasis in accounting from the University of Tampa (Tampa, FL). Kelly has been married to Sarah for 36 years and resides in Huntsville, Alabama. They have one child, Amy, who lives in Madison, Alabama, with her husband, Ramon, and grandchildren, Sophia, Eloise, and Charlie.