

The Silicon Valley Council of Nonprofits (SVCN)
Juvenile Justice Directory
January 2009

SVCN is a network of 200 health and human service agencies. The mission of SVCN is to champion the interest of health and human service nonprofits in Silicon Valley. SVCN works to ensure the nonprofit sector's voice is heard and that solutions are developed in ways in which Everybody Wins.

- Influence Public Policy
- Leadership Development for Nonprofit Leaders
- Increase the Visibility of Nonprofits
- Encourage Partnerships and Networking to increase effectiveness

Since 2004, SVCN has held a juvenile justice providers network meeting monthly. It is our goal to have a community based integrated continuum of care that provides services at the front-end, middle and deep end of the system with an array of juvenile justice services, such as EMP, juvenile hall, ranch placements, etc. and alternative community-based residential services, wrap around, aftercare, mental health, System of Care, Evening Reporting Center etc. This directory provides an overview of the community base services available in our community.

Organization Mission:

The Community Health Awareness Council exists to provide alternatives to self-destructive behavior, and to help create healthy lives for the children and families of Mountain View, Los Altos, Los Altos Hills, and the surrounding communities.

The Restorative Justice Program (RJP) is part of Santa Clara County's Action Plan to respond to and reduce juvenile crime and violence. The mission of the project is to develop a balanced and restorative system in targeted areas of Santa Clara County. The three main components are Community Protection, Competency Development and Accountability. CHAC provides individual, family, and group counseling, competency development classes, and community service projects for juveniles who receive citations by any police officers in North County. When a juvenile receives a misdemeanor citation and they are a first or second time offender, they can be given the option of participating in the RJP as an alternative to the traditional court system. The probation officer refers the youth to CHAC for any number of the provided services.

Organization Mission:

Kids in Common advocates for policies, partnerships and investments that improve children's lives in Santa Clara County. Children need a strong public voice – a voice that promotes and protects their best interests. Kids in Common is that voice and challenges leaders and decision-makers in our community to act in best interest of our children. Kids in Common leads the Children's Agenda, a county-wide initiative that strives to insure that every child is safe, healthy, successful in learning, successful in life. To understand whether we are achieving this goal, the Children's Agenda has identified 13 outcomes of child well-being that we can focus on and monitor as we work to improve children's lives. One of our focus areas is juvenile arrest rates which can be lowered by providing supports that keep youth from entering the juvenile justice system. When youth enter the system, we are working to insure that there are systems, policies and best practices in place to prevent re-entry into the system.

- Adelante Mentorship Program: is a twelve week program focused on working with youth referred from the Restorative Justice Program. The RJP program focuses on first time offender youth from the ages of 10-18. It supports youth who have committed first time offenses and gives them an opportunity to be on a 90 day provisional probation without being part of formal probation. Adelante's aim is to connect youth with supportive mentors in the communities that will take part in life skill development programming as well as participate in community activities
- MAAC Life skills development: (in Juvenile Hall) through a series of workshops and one and one sessions this program aims to empower gang involved/impacted and high risk youth with the tools and skills necessary to make wise and responsible decisions, it is our goal to achieve a higher level of reasonability and to develop and strengthen a sense of self-worth. Through an innovative and comprehensive personal development curriculum, the youth gain a greater understanding of the detrimental consequences of gang involvement, substance abuse, violence, and lack of personal and profession goals. The youth also learn the important do changing their personal believe regarding their current lifestyle if they are to succeed in their personal development.
