

CSU'S GOT TALENT

The logo for California State University (CSU), consisting of the letters "CSU" in white on a red square background.

LEARNING & DEVELOPMENT

presents a series of LIVE online webcasts featuring innovative & essential training for your professional and personal success!

January 27, 2021
10:00am - 11:00am PT

All CSU Staff & Faculty are invited to attend this free webcast via this link:

<https://calstate.adobeconnect.com/CGT>

Leading to the Next Normal

Navigating Turbulent Times

The coronavirus pandemic has disrupted every facet of our lives. Organizations have made many short-term changes, some of which will lead to enduring adaptations to how we work and live. The challenge for leaders is to make sense, instill meaning, create space, and craft places that enable people to thrive in the "next normal." In this interactive presentation, Eric McNulty will discuss how and why organizations should be ambitious and aspirational in times like these.

About Eric McNulty

Eric is an active writer, speaker, and educator on leadership and, in particular, leading through crisis, change, and turbulence. He holds an appointment as associate director of the National Preparedness Leadership Initiative (NPLI), a joint program of the Harvard T.H. Chan School of Public Health and Harvard's Kennedy School of Government. Eric teaches in numerous executive education programs and graduate level courses at Harvard and speaks to executive audiences around the world about the challenges of leading in fast moving, unpredictable circumstances. His most recent book is You're It: Crisis, Change, and How to Lead When it Matters Most (PublicAffairs, June 2019), co-authored with his Harvard NPLI colleagues.

This webcast will be recorded and available on CSU Learn

