Course Description

In a world with rapidly diminishing resources new conflicts are emerging based on factors such as ethnicity, economic opportunity, religion, and nationalism. Explore global circumstances leading to conflict. (3 units)

GEOG112 is an Area V course: Culture, Civilization, and Global Understanding meant to provide students with an appreciation for cultures outside the United States. With this should come increased awareness of how foreign traditions have influenced American culture and its' global interactions. As a geographic survey of pressing contemporary issues – in politics, economy, security, and human-environmental impact - course readings, documentary films, in-class exercises, and discussions will be used to gain greater understanding of complex problems. Students will hone critical, relational, and contextual thinking and be expected to communicate independent views effectively, particularly in written format.

GE Learning Outcomes (GELO)

Upon successful completion of this GE course, students will be able to:

- GELO 1 Compare systematically the ideas, values, images, cultural artifacts, economic structures, technological developments, and/or attitudes of people from more than one culture outside the U.S.

Students will demonstrate understanding through weekly written online forum responses and threaded discussions. Students will further critically compare these concepts in a written review article.

- GELO 2 Identify the historic context of ideas and cultural traditions outside the U.S., and how they have influenced American culture.

In addition to the weekly written online forum responses and threaded discussions, students will specifically address this in two written essays pertaining to four documentary films shown this term. Students will synthesize the breadth of their understanding in a final exam essay.

- GELO 3 Explain how a culture outside the U.S. has changed in response to internal and external pressures.

Students, in a small group format, will facilitate online discussions covering cultural changes and pressures beyond U.S. borders.

Course Requirements and Assignments

Success in this course is based on the expectation that students will spend, for each unit of credit, a minimum of 45 hours over the length of the course (normally three hours per unit per week) for instruction, preparation/studying, or course related activities.

- Active online participation is imperative to your overall grade in this online course (50% of your total grade), and so frequent discussion engagement on Canvas is expected each week. In addition to posting individual assigned content in the forums you must read through fellow classmate posts and reply to at least two responses (GELO 1).
- Student groups will be tasked to lead a textbook chapter (GELO 3). This will include guiding understanding by preparing supporting slides to annotate assigned reading along with providing additional supplementary materials to enhance said content. Once the online discussion forum goes live, student groups are responsible for not just adding individual prompt responses, but also to moderate all classmate posts. This includes prompt reply with follow-up commentary and facilitating further questioning and critical thought on the content. At the end of the discussion period the student group will submit a summarized response recap. All students within a group earn the same grade.
- Links to four documentary films will be posted during this course. Two times during the term you are to demonstrate in writing how you have thought critically about narratives or images seen on the film from a global geography and social sciences point of view (GELO 2). Each essay must be three typed pages (double-spaced, 12-point Times New Roman font, with 1" margins on all sides) summarizing new facts gained along with a thought-provoking critique. Film essays must include a total word count noted at the end [750 words minimum].
- A Review Article is a concise paper usually written by an editor that summarizes, compares, and contrasts all recent findings on a specific topic or theme. Create a 500-word review article, + or – 25 words, integrating any two textbook chapters covered this term (GELO 1). Your review article must be one typed page (single-spaced, 12-point times new roman font with no more than 1" margins on all sides).

Final Examination

Faculty members are required to have a culminating activity for their courses. The final exam is a single essay prompt. You must clearly support and defend in a written essay what new information you have gained from this course and how this might apply to your postgraduate goals (GELO 2). Cite specific examples in your essay to support your argument.

Grading Information

Grades are determined on the points-based scale and include +/- grades. All students have the right, within a reasonable time, to know their academic scores, to review their graded work, and to be provided with explanations for the determination of their course grades. In keeping with this policy, and to help ensure that grading is responsive, all assignments are due as stated on the Course Schedule and Canvas. Late work is not accepted in this course. Please save all your work until after you have checked your final course grade. Then if you have questions about your final grade, you can bring in past work, and if necessary, corrections can be made.
